

MYRTLE EBERLY
SAYS SHE WAS NOT JEALOUS

Theory of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton, Which Led to First Degree Murder Charge, Contradicted by Girl Who Slew Man.

SAYS SHE THOUGHT CRAIG
WOMAN WAS LANE'S SISTER

Daughter of Woman at Whose Home He Lived Was Employed at Dreamland and Was Spoken of There as His Niece.

Myrtle Eberly, who killed Thomas Lane on Clark avenue between Twenty-third street and Jefferson avenue, last Saturday night, because, as she says, he told her he would not marry her, denies that she was prompted by jealousy of Mary Craig. This theory of the motive for the crime is held by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton and was the basis of his action in drawing a warrant charging the girl with murder in the first degree.

She declares that she believed Mary Craig to be the sister of Lane. She said to the Post-Dispatch Friday:

"The statement that this woman, Mary Craig, was not related to Lane is a revelation to me. He told me he had a sister living on Carr street, and I now suppose Mary Craig is the woman he referred to. I did not know her name until I read of her having testified at the inquest."

"Her daughter, Margaret Craig, was employed at Dreamland as a cashier. Ed Leonard (the name by which Lane was known to Myrtle Eberly) introduced her there as his niece, and I had no reason to think that this was not true."

"I was not jealous of him on account of this woman or any other woman. I had no reason to be jealous."

She was asked if she was inclined to be jealous of Mary Craig, now that she knew the latter was not Lane's sister.

"Not a bit of it," she said. "There is no use of being jealous now. Well, he was a fine bird," she added, musingly, after a pause.

The mother of the girl called on her Thursday evening for the first time since the shooting. She has been too sick to go to the Four Courts sooner. Mother and daughter had a long talk together in the detention room. Mrs. Eberly was detected when she arrived, but the girl cheered her up by telling her that it would all come out right in the end, and she seemed in a more hopeful mood when she left.

It was learned Friday that Margaret Craig, daughter of Mary Craig, was employed at Dreamland, near the World's Fair Administration entrance, at the same time that Myrtle Eberly and Lane were employed there. The understanding there, employees of the place say, was that she was Lane's niece.

Ed Gov. Charles P. Johnson, attorney for the girl, will have her released on bond, although the warrant which is to be issued against her Friday will charge her with first degree murder. He says there are precedents for the admission to bail of persons so charged.

MRS. CRAIG SAYS LANE WAS MERELY HER BOARDER

Mrs. Mary Craig of 212 Carr street, who has been indicted on a charge of perjury in testifying at the coroner's inquest that she was Lane's sister, and whom Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton, on learning of her part in the case, considered a probable rival of Myrtle Eberly, says that Lane was nothing more to her than a boarder, and that her testimony before the coroner was a compromise in allowing him to speak of her as his sister.

Lane boarded with Mrs. Craig until two weeks before his death. Mrs. Craig has a family of grown-up children, and takes in boarders to help pay her expenses. When Lane went to work at Dreamland he told his boss that he was living at home with his sister.

"I only knew the man by the name of Leonard," said Mrs. Craig. "He never made any thing of a boarder. He made my mistake in letting him tell people that I was his sister. His excuse was that strangers had a hard time getting work in St. Louis and that he got around this fact by representing himself as a St. Louisan."

"I never went out with the man in my life," continued Mrs. Craig. "He had his own room, and after he took his meals we never knew when he came in or went out."

"I heard him mention the fact that he had a steady girl, but never took enough interest in her to even ask her name."

"I didn't want to go near the coroner's office when the inquest was held. It was the first time I was ever in the place, and I don't remember what I said or did there."

"I told them that Leonard had a watch of mine and a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, which I had also loaned him. The watch is a cheap affair, worth $2 or $3, but the spectacles belonged to my mother at one time, and I did want to regain possession of them."

"The other trinkets are not worth anything, and as long as a number of people seemed to be in the impression that Leonard was my brother, I just signed for the envelope and took the stuff home, thinking that if the dead man's relatives or friends took any interest in his death they would surely hunt him up. Then I learned that if the dead man's relatives are practically valueless."

The trinkets referred to by Mrs. Craig were a watch chain, evidently plated, and a pair of plated cuff buttons.

Mrs. Craig is on bond. A warrant charging perjury was issued against her for testifying falsely at the inquest. Charles Schwabacher, ward politician, signed her bond and now she is doing her best to get out of the court on the bond.

She says "Chris" threatens to surrender her unless she pays him for the trouble and risk to her name. Mrs. Craig was seen and heard in St. Louis. This is the first time, she says, she was ever arrested.

"EVERY INCH OF GROUND

Festival Crowds in St. Petersburg Cling to Bulletin Boards, Eager of News. Which Have Thus Far Told Them Nothing to Arouse Enthusiasm.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 14.—A dispatch from Gen. Kuropatkin, dated early this morning, says that the Russians on the right wing on Wednesday and Thursday defended their advanced positions and also portions of the main position, particularly in the direction of Shalupodsk, until last evening, when Kuropatkin ordered them to withdraw a short distance. In spite of the fact that the Japanese attacks were chiefly directed against these troops, the Russians held the ground to which they retired.

On the left wing, after a very obstinate struggle, Russians occupied the rocky hills south of Mukden and the fate of the battle was decided. The Japanese, about eight miles north of Yentai, but the arrival of large Japanese reinforcements prevented them from profiting by this success, and as this body was separated from the rest of the troops, Kuropatkin ordered it to retire.

The dispatch continues that the Russians suffered heavy losses. In a single regiment of over 100 officers only eight escaped death or wounds that incapacitated them.

HARBIN, Oct. 14.—The hospitals are preparing for the reception of 37 officers and 1200 men wounded during the recent fighting before Yentai and who are now in their way to Harbin by train. Mukden hospitals have been filled and the stronger patients are being brought north.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 14, 1:05 p. m.—It is now 7 o'clock at night on the battle ground below Mukden and the fate of Gen. Kuropatkin's forward movement and possibly the fate of his whole army may already have been decided, but no word has yet come regarding the issue. The city is filled with countless rumors of defeat and victory.

The holy crowds engaged in celebrating the festival of the "Intercession of the Virgin for humanity," on which occasion they usually spend their time in merry-making, are clinging to the bulletin boards hungrily awaiting news of the issue of the most critical day.

The Emperor has received the following dispatch, dated yesterday, from Gen. Kuropatkin:

"Two regiments of the Russian right on Oct. 12 sustained heavy losses. The commander of one was killed and the brigade commander was wounded. Both regiments were compelled to withdraw, abandoning their artillery, but subsequently, under Col. Vannovsky, who temporarily assumed command of the brigade, they after a desperate assault, regained possession of the guns, with the exception of 16, which remained in the hands of the Japanese. The final issue of the battle Wednesday on this front was not decided."

the battle was unsuccessful for us. On account of a night attack of the Japanese, our troops were forced to not only abandon their positions, but again lost the guns previously recovered from the Japanese. Our forces retired to the position previously prepared on the Shinkhe river."

Gen. Kuropatkin's official report, given out at 1:30 p. m., definitely confirming the loss of artillery attached to the brigade on his right flank, as the result of Gen. Oku's attack on Wednesday night, only served to increase public apprehension. The number of guns lost is not specifically stated. Each division is composed of two brigades with a brigade of artillery of its own.

It seems that the Russians lost 24 guns, which would correspond with the Tokio report.

Retirement in Face of Withering Fire.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE RUSSIAN WESTERN ARMY, Oct. 12, via Mukden, Oct. 13, via Peking, Oct. 14.—The most fierce and important fighting that has taken place since the battle of Liaoyang reached its height at noon today, when, after a bold attack, which lasted for three days, the Russians began a suspicious retirement from the positions they held yesterday and the Japanese by a strong central movement forced the Russian line five miles to the north.

There was an entangled artillery duel in the vicinity of Tonsungu, to the westward, in which, during the day, one regiment was caught by a crossfire and almost annihilated within a few minutes.

Tonsungu wavered until noon, when the Japanese made good their occupation, and Col. Stakovich, who had made a magnificent stand for four days, after more than 20 of his officers had been put out of action, fell back before the terrible onslaught of the Japanese.

The Japanese proved their ability to utilize their strong position at the Yentai coal mines, which the Russian advance guard reported had not been utilized up to Oct. 12.

The Russians moving in that direction were unable to occupy the position, owing to the developments of the past 24 hours, and fell back in conformity with previous plans.

At 11 o'clock in the morning the battle reached a stage of severity three times greater than that of yesterday, solid masses of troops filling up the front.

At 4:15 p. m., the Russians army made an orderly and timely withdrawal, followed by a furious rifle fire from the Japanese. The Red Cross surgeons were performing operations at Shalupodsk railway station. Many of the wounded were loaded on trains which moved north during the day.

It was heard on every side.

"Gen. Kuropatkin's order to advance had aroused the greatest enthusiasm everywhere."

"We left Mukden on Oct. 8. The Japanese at that time occupied the villages of Chingtan, Taducan, Sinopa, Samuhedai and Chanzai."

"These were merely their outposts. Their main front line was at Dava, which occupied their left flank and extended to Da pass, their right, where a brigade of infantry occupied the hills. They had two divisions between Sandigou and Khoutan; four at the Yentai mines and two at Benlapiuta and Beshu. How many reserves were in their rear it was impossible to ascertain. Chinese are utterly unreliable and our scouts have been unable to penetrate far into Japanese lines. It is certain, however, that they are strongly entrenched at Shangopudsk and Chintaiadsk. Their entrenchments continue in groups across an extended front at Inohendai and Yentai."

"There is another strong group on the hills between Muchan and Sykwanun and another at Shantaidai."

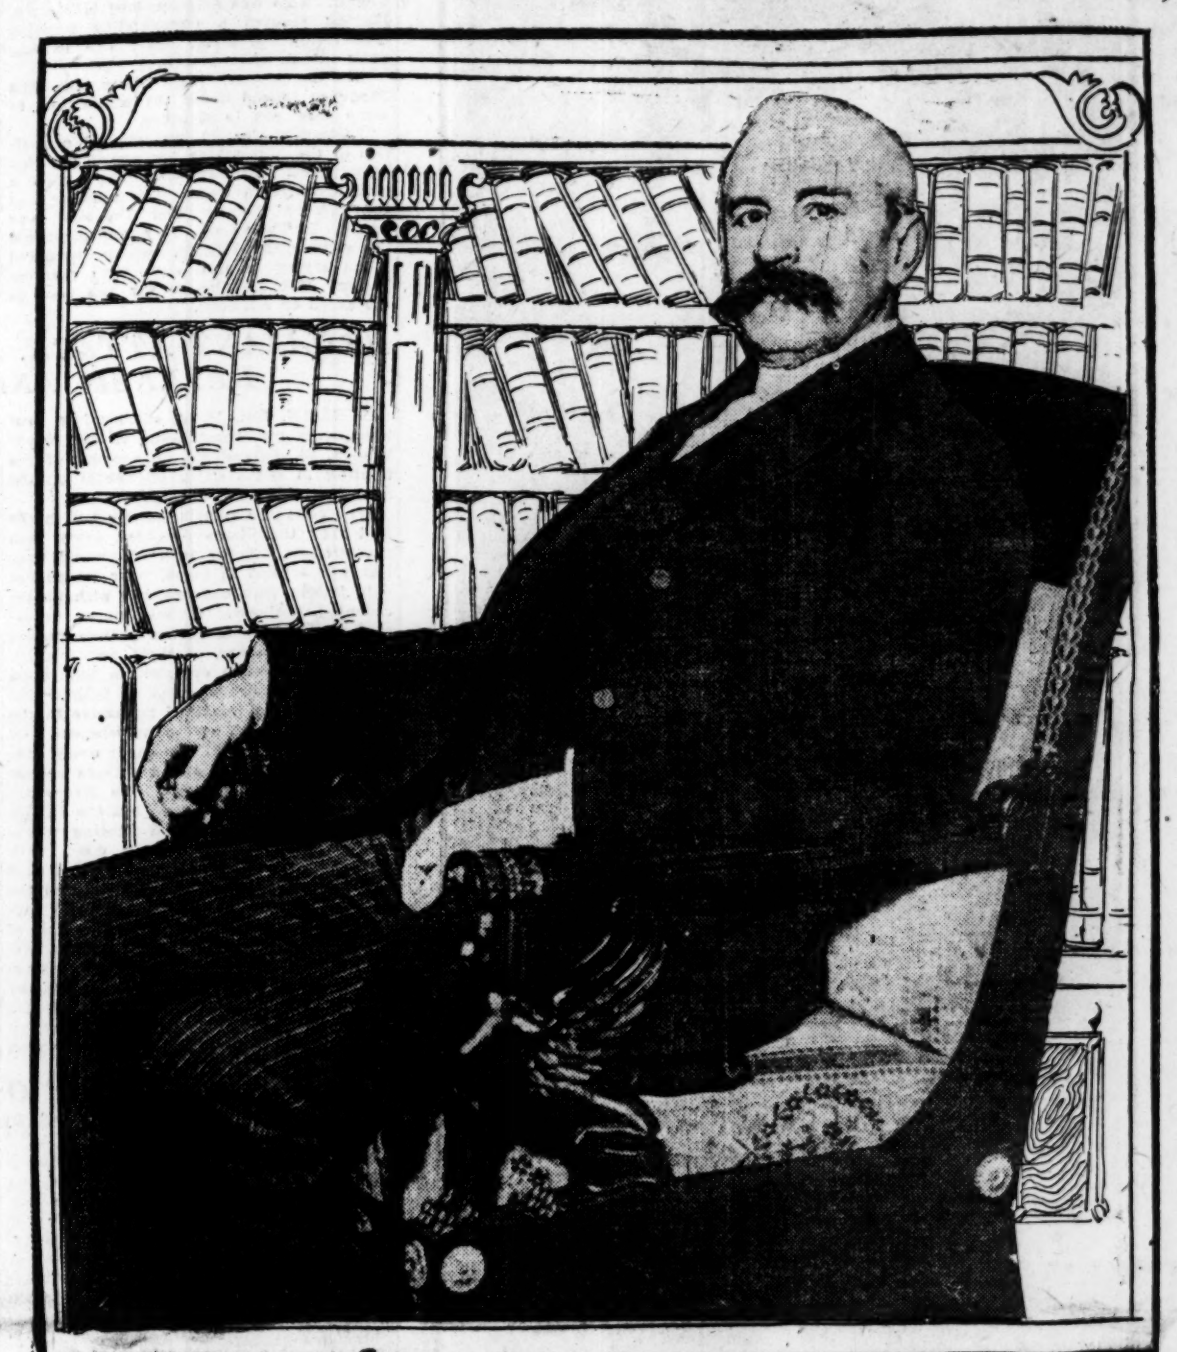

"The advance was general along the line on Oct. 8. The day was wet and foggy, and while this did not contribute to high spirits, it served to impede the Japanese artillery fire, which, as we approached their eastern position was extremely ineffective."

"This day Gen. Mischenko had a brilliant engagement with the Japanese near Bentshupsk. The Cosack batteries went in at a gallop, firing and advancing to fresh positions and repeating the operation until the Japanese abandoned hill positions and fled in confusion. Taking advantage of the confusion caused by the artillery fire, the Verkhneudinsk Siberian regiment rushed the position, not giving the Japanese even time to remove their ammunition boxes. It is reported that the Japanese lost heavily in this encounter."

"Bentshupsk was a magnificent position held by a division of Japanese and strongly entrenched."

PASTOR JANZOW
IGNORES PRAYERS
OF THE CLERGY

Letters Written to Explain Non-Appearance of Pres. Francis and Others at Reception to Vice-President Corral, Which Some of His Party Consider a Slight.

President Francis, Mrs. Manning, Secretary Stevens and other leading World's Fair officials have written cordial notes to Vice-President Corral of Mexico and the members of the Mexican commission, explaining the circumstances which prevented them from attending the reception given in honor of the Mexican vice-president at the Planters' Hotel Wednesday evening.

It is therefore hoped by the officials that the threatened breach of good feeling between them and the representatives of the Mexican government will be healed before it has had opportunity to widen into a chasm.

Some prominent Mexicans also express some belief. In fact, they say the cordiality shown to Mexicans by the World's Fair officials precludes, to their minds, the possibility of any suspicion that the failure of President Francis, Mrs. Manning and Secretary Stevens to attend the reception was due to any feeling of ill-will. In the case of President Francis, they are particularly willing to agree that after he had attended the Michigan reception at the Michigan state building, and the Italian water fête in the lagoons, both at the World's Fair, he was excusable in yielding to fatigue and abandoning his intention of driving six miles to the Planters' Hotel for the Mexican reception.

Other excuses are slow to abandon the impression that they and their nation were slighted, though perhaps not intentionally.

Senor Alcantara Redo, secretary to Vice-President Corral, speaking for him to a reporter of the Post-Dispatch, said Friday that no offense had been taken by Senor Corral, nor could any be taken. President Francis he said, had notified the commissioners who had charge of the reception that he had a prior engagement.

"Our treatment by President Francis has been uniformly courteous," said Senor Redo. "We are so pleased with the manner in which we have been treated that we have made preparations to stay three days longer than the time we had allotted."

"We have asked the citizens of San Francisco to defer the reception planned in honor of Vice-President Corral. We shall remain here until Sunday morning and see the Fair as private citizens. In this way we can cover more ground and get a more adequate idea of this greatest Exposition."

Louis J. Labastida, secretary of the Mexican embassy in Washington, who is acting as private secretary to Ambassador Manuel Asprisa, takes quite another view of the matter.

"The absence of President Francis from the reception was noted with regret," he said. "Nor was any personal representative of President Francis in attendance."

"This failure to be officially present at the reception which was given by the Mexican commission, Ambassador Asprisa and Vice-President Corral, could only be considered as a slight, unless

Men Who Had Put Powder in Readiness for Blast at Nelson-Morris Cooler Office Interrupted by Arrival of Official.

Investigation has led the police to the belief that the men were not "eggmen," or professional safeflowers who travel under the guise of tramps, but bold amateurs who did not appreciate the value of gunpowder or know how to use "soup," as nitroglycerine is commonly termed by safeflowers.

Manager Matthews entered the office at 1:20 o'clock this morning, preparatory to getting several loads of beef ready for Union Market. They were working in the dark, without the use of a bullseye lantern, and when Matthews entered the little office he was sprung upon by the two men, who were crouching, waiting for him, and covered with their revolvers. Matthews saw at a glance that the men had been at work on the safe.

"Hold up your hands," they said, leveling the weapons at him. After robbing him of change amounting to $1, they led him out of the office and sped a closet in the rear of the building. "Into that for yours," they said. "We won't hurt you, but you'd better keep your hand shut."

Matthews obeyed and was locked in the closet.

Then he heard the men return to their work, and he momentarily expected to hear the explosion.

Fifteen Minutes of Deadly Terror.

After remaining in his prison for 15 minutes, waiting breathlessly, momentarily expecting to hear the report of the explosion and fearing that it would wreck the house and he would be killed, Matthews forced open the door and found that the men had departed.

He then notified the police by telephone.

Investigation proved that the men had looted the cash drawer, which contained some $1 or $4, and had also taken from 100 pennies from the bookkeeper's drawer, also a "plugged" quarter. The safe contained about $100 in cash and $700 in checks, which would have been valuable to the robbers.

After policemen arrived an examination of the safe disclosed that black ordinary gunpowder had been used by the burglars. With only four ounces of this powder they expected to blow off the door of the safe, which is about four feet wide by five feet high. This would have been impossible, safe experts say.

A hole had been bored below the combination knob about three-fourths of an inch in diameter, through the two steel plates of the safe door, each one-fourth of an inch thick, into the lock.

An improvised paper funnel on the floor containing grains of powder showed that the would-be robbers had poured the powder through this into the safe lock.

A force of workmen, drivers and meat handlers arrives at the warehouse every morning at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Matthews states, but this morning, as there was an extra amount of work on hand, he decided to get down earlier.

Not Enough Powder to Open the Safe.

He opened the door leading into the little office which is located at the southeast corner of the building. He advanced several steps to reach a light when a man sprang upon him.

A light from the outer inclosure, which he made as he entered, showed the gleam of the men's blue steel revolvers.

After locking him in, Matthews says, he heard the men return to the office and then leave again. He thought this time they were running away from the safe after lighting the fuse. No explosion occurred after his terrifying wait. Matthews forced open the door.

The men had made their exit through a south double door adjoining the closet in which Matthews was locked. On a six-foot fence that separates the Nelson-Morris property from the adjoining lot, footprints could be seen, and it is believed the men ran south to the Walsh tracks.

Ernest Weiss, a safe expert, examined the safe Friday morning and said that four ounces of powder would not have been sufficient to blow the lock open.

The men gained entrance to the warehouse by forcing open a fastening on a green at one of the side windows.

The men wore no masks and Mr. Matthews says he could easily identify them.

He gives their description as follows: Two larger of the men, height, 5 feet 2 inches; black mustache; weight, 165 pounds; dark hair; black slouch hat and dark suit. The other one, 5 feet 11 inches in height; black hair; weight, 165 pounds; black slouch hat and dark suit.

They were poorly dressed, he says, and looked like tramps.

Two safeflowers, surprised at their work early this morning by Richmond Matthews, night manager of cooler No. 5 of the Nelson-Morris company, at 230 South Vandeventer avenue, locked the manager in a closet and left him in momentary dread of the destruction of the building, while they abandoned their task and escaped.

GRAND JURY TO HEAR OF COUNTY "GRAFT" GAMES

R. L. Johnston, County Prosecuting Attorney, Will Take the Evidence of Self-Confessed County "Gripter" Before Grand Jurors.

NAMES OF "GRAFTERS" FURNISHED PROSECUTOR

Statement Made That "Sure Thing" Operations Are Due to Insufficient Police Protection But No Remedy Could Be Found.

Prosecuting Attorney R. L. Johnston of St. Louis County told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he would subpoena Wallace O'Reilly, confessed "steerer" and "booster" for "sure-thing" games in the Delmar Garden and Greve Cour Lake districts of St. Louis County, as a witness before the St. Louis County grand jury.

O'Reilly, since his arrest Tuesday afternoon, when he, with two companions, ventured into the St. Louis city limits in his efforts to "steer" Rev. Thomas Powell Clark, a Lexington, Tenn., preacher, against a "drop case game," has been held by the St. Louis police, to whom, as printed exclusively in the Post-Dispatch, he told what he says is a full story of the organization of the "grifters" and their alliance for "protection" with certain of the St. Louis County officials.

Names of the men whom O'Reilly speaks as the leaders of the "grifters," and the officials with whom he says they are in practical partnership were given to Mr. Johnston Thursday afternoon by a Post-Dispatch reporter. The prosecuting attorney said he would have them called before the grand jury as witnesses.

In going over the names mentioned by O'Reilly, Mr. Johnston said he had heard of them as being "interested" in gambling in St. Louis County.

"One of the men," he said, "approached me on one occasion when I was at Greve Cour Lake, introduced himself, and told me his name was being given as the 'boss' of the gamblers in that district. He wanted to tell me the report was not true. But," added the prosecuting attorney, "I guess he was mixed up with it."

Names Known

But No Arrests.

"Another of the men named was prominent in the Delmar Garden neighborhood until he was hurt in a fight at his place. I have not seen him for some weeks."

"A third one, named as being 'king' of the Delmar Garden district, has been 'working' in the German Village neighborhood. I do not think he has done much in the Delmar Garden neighborhood."

"None of these men has been arrested on gambling charges."

"The evidence that I have been able to get against them is not enough, I think, to convict them. There have been numerous reports, but there has been little direct testimony to support the reports."

Mr. Johnston was asked if he had heard the charges that the gamblers paid certain St. Louis County officials for "protection."

"Of course I have heard them," he said, "but the charges have never been proved. I am not going to make charges against an official until they are proved."

Mr. Johnston was asked if he thought the county officials had been as active as they might have been in arresting gamblers and trying to break up the "sure-thing" organization.

"We can't get enough deputies for the work," he answered. "We haven't been able to keep more than three or four deputy sheriffs on the work. You see we are prohibited by law from paying deputy sheriffs more than $2 per day, and we can't get men to give a bond and work for that sum. We have been adding to the number slowly, and secured three men to go to work Friday. All our deputy sheriffs, you understand, must live in St. Louis County."

Mr. Johnston was asked if any effort had been made on the part of law-abiding citizens in the county to raise a fund to add to that which the county could legally pay and by that means employ enough good deputy sheriffs to patrol the "sure-thing" districts.

"No," said Mr. Johnston. "Nothing like that has been thought of, so far as I know. I paid a witness hotel bill to get him to stay here over night and give his testimony, but that is all I know about. And that did not amount to anything."

"The fact of the matter is," continued Mr. Johnston, "there is very little gambling going on in St. Louis County. There hasn't been much of that kind of business since early in the summer. All the work is 'stick ups,' 'snatches' and daylight robberies. We catch the perpetrators when we can. We have made several arrests, but the newspapers never say anything about them."

Mr. Johnston was asked how many arrests had been made, and what proportion they bore to the number of offenses reported.

"O, I don't know," he said. "But there have been several."

As was told in late editions of Thursday's Post-Dispatch, the St. Louis County grand jury adjourned to Monday without making the partial report which Mr. Johnston and Foreman Henry H. Heimerling had said earlier in the day would be made.

The St. Louis County grand jury, which promises to investigate "sure-thing" gambling and official corruption, last been in session at intervals since the third Monday in September. It is composed of: Henry C. Heimerling, former county clerk and justice of the peace at Maplewood; George Hornecker, former county judge of Meramec township; E. J. Aulen, member of the well-known Aulen family in Clayton; Peter Bopp, Sr. of Kirkwood; Henry Heimerling and J. H. Dietrich of Bonhomme township; John Hints and Anton Ruchel of Carondelet township; Charles Barbee of Central township; P. W. Gluck of Meramec township; T. E. Lucas and Joseph Lindeman of St. Ferdinand township.

O'Reilly, the "Sure Thing" Gambler, Who Told of Protection in St. Louis County and Coined New Slang Word "Grifter"

HISTORY OF THE NEW SLANG WORD "GRIFTER"

GRIFTER—One who separates another from his money by means of any sure-thing gambling or confidence game or device such as "gold brick," "green goods," "lock trick," "shell game," which the intended victim could avoid if prudent; distinct from "grafter," who is a thief by stealth or force and whose victim has no show.—Wallace O'Reilly.

In his confession of criminal methods, employed under official protection, in St. Louis County, first made public by the Post-Dispatch, Wallace O'Reilly, "booster" for "sure-thing" games, has added a new word to the criminal lexicon.

O'Reilly, loath to hear himself and his companions classed under the comprehensive designation of "grifters," says they are "grifters," and draws a distinction between the adroit practices of his kind and the violent and indiscriminate means employed by the "grifters."

For not quite ten years past the term "grafter" has, in criminal parlance, been applied to thieves of nearly every description. The figure of speech shows aptness for metaphor on the part of its originator, who saw the similarity between detaching money from its proper place to attach it elsewhere and the operation by which the nurseryman improves the yield of his trees.

The term has also had a political significance, denoting practices more petty than those of the large hoodler, but equally pervasive of official honor. It has also been applied to hangers-on of courts who prey on the ignorant by representations of influence with court officials.

"Grifters" do not use physical force with their victims. According to St. Louis County, terminating in at least one case in a murder, are the work of "grifters" who have "budded in" on the territory in which the "grifters" have purchased official protection.

It is an interesting coincidence that the dictionaries give "grift" as a synonym for "graft."

MITCHELL JUST MISSED BAER Leaders of Miners and Mine Owners Visit Mining Exhibit.

The men who run the Mining Gulch at the World's Fair are wondering what would have happened if John Mitchell, head of the coal miners' union, had arrived there one day late.

Mr. Mitchell was there Wednesday. If he had been a day later he would have had President Baer of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, his opponent in the great anthracite strike, for a traveling companion.

In this instance, however, the opposing leaders of labor and capital agreed. After making a tour of the gulch they visited the offices of the Department of Mines and Metallurgy, and declared the exhibits in the gulch afforded the greatest display of advanced mining methods ever offered in the United States.

"I shall advise miners throughout the country not to fail to visit the World's Fair," said Mr. Mitchell.

RAIN KEPT GOVERNOR AWAY.

New Mexico Day Will Come After Washouts Are Repaired.

Too much water has thwarted all the plans for the celebration of New Mexico day at the World's Fair Monday, Oct. 17. The superabundance is in New Mexico, usually considered a dry country, and not in St. Louis.

Last week it rained in New Mexico, and it rained hard. The water overtopped the bridge and washed out most of the railroad bridges in the territory. The railroads were just recovering when two days ago it rained again and there were more washouts.

Thursday Commissioner Porterfield received a telegram from Santa Fe advising him to call off all plans as Gov. Otero's official party and the other New Mexicans who wanted to visit St. Louis couldn't get here. There are few trains running. New Mexico will have its day yet. It will be about Nov. 15 when the bridges are rebuilt.

KUROPATKIN'S FORCE FLEES FROM JAPANESE

"Meantime hard fighting was proceeding on the extreme east, where we drove back the Japanese step by step. The troops we met here were evidently a fresh reorganization and not those opposed to us at Liaoyang."

"The same day the Voronok regiment was ordered to occupy hills in front of Yental. This was accomplished brilliantly. Having secured a commanding position they entrenched under heavy fire, driving back attack after attack."

"The day closed with a heavy rain. The Japanese retired along the whole line, in some cases six to 12 miles."

"Yesterday, Oct. 10, we reached a position in the hills which lay across our line of advance. The Japanese were then a long distance in front. The weather had then gotten warmer and the sun was bright. Below us on every side stretched the same cleared fields, which bordered hills varying in size and with narrow passes. The fighting so far has cost us 200 killed or wounded."

"The Japanese made desperate efforts to recover the hill held by the Voronok regiment. They threw a whole brigade of infantry against it, supported by a heavy fire from their batteries. The Voronok men gallantly held the position. Our batteries first replied from the hill tops, but later went below. The Japanese, not perceiving the change of position, continued to fire on the old position all day."

"The day closed with a smother of fog lifted here and there by rain squalls. Across the low lying fog we could see the top of the disputed hill with the old Japanese tower looking as though it were suspended in the air. Further off glinted the roofs of the Yental mines."

"Today, Oct. 11, the Japanese renewed the attack on the hill held by the Voronok regiment with terrific force."

"Three attacks had been driven back when the brave regiment received the order to retire to the central position."

"The weather is cold, but clear."

"At one point several battalions of Japanese attempted to surround two of our companies, but the Voronok regiment, coming gallantly to the rescue, brought the Japanese under a heavy fire. The Japanese thereupon raised a Red Cross flag and began to swear in Russian, shouting, 'stop shooting; you are killing your own men.'"

"The Voronok regiment paused, though they were certain they had made no mistake, having seen a Japanese signal meaning 'send up reserves.'"

"Shifting their ground, the Voronok regiment poured in fresh volleys upon the Japanese flank and rear at a range of 30 to 60 yards. The ground was covered with dead Japanese and the remainder fled in confusion. Our soldiers shouted their satisfaction at having punished the Japanese for a trick they often played when in a close corner. The Voronok regiment, however, did not retire; enough of Japanese reserves coming up, caught them in a heavy cross fire, under which they suffered considerably. No praise is too great for all the regiments participating in this fight."

"Several squadrons of Japanese cavalry and two battalions of infantry were wiped out in attempting a flanking movement. They tried to work around our rear, but were cut off and our volleys gradually decimated their ranks. No Japanese reached our lines or returned to his own. The Japanese rifle fire seemed very defective."

BRILLIANT ATTACK, MARVELOUS DEFENSE AND GREAT SLAUGHTER

MUKDEN, Oct. 14.—A courier has just brought in for transmission to the Novoe Vrenya, St. Petersburg, on account of the fighting in the vicinity of Yental on the first days. The correspondent says:

"The Japanese must be credited with the fact that they have defended every inch marvelously. Every inch of ground they lost was soaked in blood. Our troops not only fought with courage, but with unprecendented coolness. It was never necessary to send them forward, they rushed upon the Japanese of their own accord. Though the attack everywhere had to be carried out under a cloud of bullets and shells, the men remained impassive in the face of the most severe punishment. Of one company only 17 remained; every officer had been killed and a private soldier commanded the remnant. We frequently attacked with the bayonet, but the Japanese avoided hand to hand fighting whenever they could; mowing us down with shell and machine gun fire, and if this failed to stop our rush they evacuated the position, throwing hand grenades and covering the captured position with a hail of shells and shrapnel from their nearest batteries. Thus we suffered heavy losses; but, strange to say, few were killed, by far the greater number being wounded."

"Several squadrons of Japanese cavalry and two battalions of infantry were wiped out in attempting a flanking movement. They tried to work around our rear, but were cut off and our volleys gradually decimated their ranks. No Japanese reached our lines or returned to his own. STATE ONLY CAN STOP GAMBLING

Federal Attorney Cites Statute by Which Chance Games on River Could Be Ended.

Assistant United States District Attorney H. L. Dyer takes issue with the police department, which holds that gamblers on Mississippi river excursion steamers cannot be prosecuted by state courts. The assistant district attorney cites a section of the statute, under which, he says, they can be prosecuted.

Although thousands of dollars have been lost by St. Louis people and visitors to St. Louis on river trips, and complaints by the score have reached the police department, there has been no prosecution.

Mr. Dyer said in the Post-Dispatch: "The power to stop river gambling lies in the state court and the state court alone. There is no federal statute under which this office can take the matter up. The state has the power and can act under this statute."

"When any offense shall have been committed within this state on board of any vessel or in any railroad car, in the course of any voyage or trip, an examination thereof may be made and an indictment returned for the same may be found, and a trial and conviction thereof had, in any county through which or any part of which such vessel or railroad car shall be navigated or run, in the course of the same voyage or trip, or in the county where such voyage or trip shall terminate, in the same manner and with like effect as if the offense where the offense was committed."

"This section of the statute is supported in a decision of the supreme court of Missouri. A prosecution could be had under this statute in a state court. And that is the only place gambling can be stopped. There is no federal statute prohibiting gambling, except in the navy of the United States."

WOMAN'S WORK IN ITALY DESCRIBED IN REPORT

COUNTESS GABRIELLA SPALLETTI

As a climax of the celebration of Italian Week the report of "Woman's Activity in Italy During the Last Twenty Years" has been issued by Mrs. Tullio Giordana, who has charge of the exhibit made by the Italian Women's Committee in the Liberal Arts building at the World's Fair.

Countess Gabriella Spalletti, president of the committee, has been instrumental in the arrangement of the report.

Women lead in the teaching force of Italy, there being 27,466 of them in the Italian schools. Men in the schools number 19,395.

The maid-servant question is not one that worries Italy, according to the report.

There girls who expect to be servants or housewives are carefully trained in domestic duties. The training gives them the respect for their work which is lacking in America.

The report closes with a record of the women who have done creditable work in literature, history and science, and the list of their works.

Mrs. Giordana, who represents the committee at the World's Fair, is the wife of Sig. Tullio Giordana, a novelist and member of the Fine Arts commission at the World's Fair.

BRYAN SAYS ALL DEMOCRATS CAN SUPPORT PARKER

Repeats That He Is Heart and Soul for the Democratic Ticket, Believing That Its Success Is for the Country's Good.

BY SAMUEL G. BLYTHE,
Special Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

PORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 14.—They had a barbecue at Peru yesterday. Opinions differed in the city as to whether the barbecue was in honor of William Jennings Bryan or William Jennings Bryan was in honor of the barbecue.

However, both Bryan and the barbecue were great successes. John Kern, who has been campaigning in Indiana for 20 years, says the barbecue was one of the largest political meetings he had ever seen in the state. There were 20,000 people there. Bryan spoke to all the people who could crowd on one side of the courthouse square. Those were eager to hear him, this audience numbered about 200 people. The other 18,000 were out on Main street having fun. Two days ago the barbecue man, skilled by many years' practice, began his preparations. He dug his trenches in a field across the Wabash river from Peru, put his long steel rails in position, dressed 12 big beavers, lighted his fires and sat down to watch. He kept his fire going until early this morning. Then the barbecue crew took the beavers and cut them up. They had 16,000 hard rolls and 500 pumpkin pies.

Ten Brass Bands

Sounded the Welcome.

All other attractions lost their drawing power when Bryan came in. The space around the railroad station was jammed.

A row of gaudily uniformed brass bands stretched up the brick-paved street. There were 10 of them, from all parts of the state, including the La Porte Band, which the Indiana people say is the best band they have. Ten drum majors' batons gave the signal to play when Bryan stepped from his car. "Boom-Boom-Um-Ta-Ta, Um-Ta-Ta," way they went, every man blowing himself purple in the face and the drummers beating until their wrists ached. It was a wild blare of brass.

"That's the way we do it in Peru," said the citizen proudly.

Then came the parade up the street. Three bands preceded the Bryan carriage and three bands followed it. The escort of honor was the local Kern club. Every Democratic frock coat and every Democratic high hat in Peru was in service in that parade and every one of the escort stepped along, looking ahead with the stern, set expression that comes with frequent attempts to wear silk hats and look unconscious of the unwanted head gear.

Bryan Liked

the Big Audience.

Bryan was jammed through the crowd to the stand and spoke for an hour. After the speech he said his audience was one of the most responsive he had talked to this year. The keynote of the Peru speech, as of all the other speeches Bryan has made, was his sincerity in his advocacy of the election of Parker and Davis. He referred to the stories that have been printed, alleging that he is not at heart for the Democratic ticket, and denied them all.

"Tell us the truth about Parker," shouted a man in the crowd. This gave Bryan his opportunity. He went over the St. Louis convention situation, spoke of his own part there and then urged every Democrat to vote for Parker. He repeated what he said about Parker's fitness for the presidency and announced again that inasmuch as silver is not an issue every Democrat can vote for Parker. He continued:

"I am sure that I have proved to the people of this country that I have moral courage. If I wanted to defeat Parker and Davis I would not skulk under the cover of darkness to do it. I would come out into the open and make my fight. And if I wanted the silver Democrats—the men who voted for me in 1896 and 1898—to help me defeat Parker I would frankly ask them to help me and I would help them. I want nothing of the kind. I am earnestly for the ticket. I want all my friends to be for it as earnestly as I am, and as honestly."

Beveridge Makes

"Coffee Pot" Issue.

Some days ago Senator Beveridge made a speech in Indiana saying that the real test of prosperity of the country lies in the coffee pot. "The workingman consumes now twice as much coffee as he did under the last Democratic President," Senator Beveridge is reported as saying. "That is the real test of the prosperity of the country. We use twice as much coffee as we did when Cleveland was President."

Bryan referred to the coffee pot argument of the Indiana senator.

"Four years ago," he said, "the Republican argument was the full dinner pail. This year it is the full coffee pot. In the next presidential election it will probably be the full water pitcher."

"We all know that coffee is a stimulant. Perhaps the workingmen are using coffee because they need that stimulant to supply the lack of food."

In his Peru speech Mr. Bryan dwelt for a long time on the question of imperialism. He said he was sure the country will get a constitutional government from Judge Parker. He went into the recognition of the republic of Panama by President Roosevelt and asked: "Would he have treated England or France or Germany as he treated poor little Colombia?"

He referred at some length to the labor opinion of Judge Parker, analyzing some of them and asserting that if Parker is elected the workingman will not be deceived through the war department.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 14.—A cable message from Rome announces the election of Father Dominick Reuter as head of the Franciscan order of the world. This is the first time it has been bestowed on an American since the establishment of the order 700 years ago.

Father Reuter was a student as a youth in a theological preparatory academy in Terre Haute, one of six boys coming from Albany, N. Y.

Within a few months he and two of the six will celebrate their silver jubilee in this city, where Father Lehnner and Father Zoller have parishes.

LETTERS TO THE SUNDAY EDITOR

I AM constantly receiving letters inquiring why it is that the Sunday Post-Dispatch (which is a different paper from the Post-Dispatch, the latter being a 1-cent evening journal while the Sunday is a 5-cent morning journal) should have 250,000 more readers than any paper west of the Mississippi and is so rapidly increasing. I won't attempt to explain it all here, but I will give one or two reasons.

What is it that distinguishes a Sunday paper from a week-day paper so that the public buy it in larger numbers at five times the price? It cannot be the telegraphic and local news or the Editorial Page, which appear every day in the week. It must therefore be the special Sunday Features. Aside from the colored Comic Section, these, in nearly all papers, are embraced in what is known as the Sunday Magazine.

Now let us examine this Sunday Magazine, which is so much of a novelty in journalism (having grown up in the past eight years) that it is still a mystery to the vast majority of Editors. The average Magazine in the average Sunday newspaper is the dearest part of the whole production.

The reason for this is obvious. Not knowing how to make their own Sunday Magazine out of local subjects, they fill up with "syndicate matter" sent out by photograph factories and literary machine shops in New York.

I get tons of these ready-made clothes of journalism and send them all back. Our Magazine (the best-printed in the United States) averages nine-tenths local matter every Sunday.

But ignorant as are these Editors (and it would surprise you to know how ignorant an editor can sometimes be) they are occasionally impelled to make a showing with a local feature. What then do they do? Take, for instance, some St. Louis papers. One of them broke out last Sunday with the Life of Dred Scott for the leading feature in its Magazine, the excuse being that although Dred Scott died 40 years ago, he at one time lived in St. Louis! Another of its local features was a letter about St. Louis written 100 years ago!

Do you wonder that such papers are "dead ones?"

And all of this imbecility is exhibited in the presence of the World's Fair, with superb news-magazine features at their very doors! I have printed MORE original World's Fair features in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine THAN ALL THE NEWSPAPERS OF THE UNITED STATES COMBINED. Not "write-ups!" Not mere descriptions of known, obvious things, but revelations, disclosures of interesting developments of the Fair, actual news in numerous cases. Many of these have, on the Sunday of their appearance, been telegraphed to other papers and cabled to Europe. For instance, my feature a week ago last Sunday on Cronje's reply to his critics was cabled in extenso to the London Daily Mail.

It is such features that give LIFE to a Sunday paper. These are what the people want. The public is eager for live local topics interestingly treated by men of intelligence. They ask for NEWS. They are given A STONE! And, as Lincoln said, you can fool all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time, but you never can fool all of the people all of the time!

Now as PROOF and ILLUSTRATION of these remarks I want to call general attention to our coming Sunday Magazine. It will, among other features, contain:

1. The remarkable observations of a remarkable woman on St. Louis society and the World's Fair—a critical analysis of our local 400 by a trained social expert.
2. An exclusive page story strikingly illustrated on the most novel contest (soon to begin) at the World's Fair.
3. A charming musical romance of the World's Fair and Esopus, N. Y., leading to a forthcoming wedding.
4. A front color page of some of the prettiest visitors to the World's Fair from a neighboring state.
5. A back color page of exquisite half-tones, showing St. Louis theatrical attractions of next week.

AND IN ADDITION TO ALL OF THIS, THE COMING POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZINE WILL CONTAIN THE MOST EXTRAORDINARY STORY YET BROUGHT TO "LIGHT" BY THE WORLD'S FAIR—SHOWING THE GREATEST DISCOVERY OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY, WHICH MARKS A NEW EPOCH IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD AND GIVING SUBSTANTIAL GROUND FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR'S CLAIM TO ENDURING FAME.

Miss Nettie Blackmore, Minneapolis, tells how any young woman may be permanently cured of monthly pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"YOUNG WOMEN:—I had frequent headaches of a severe nature, dark spots before my eyes, and at my menstrual periods I suffered untold agony. A member of the lodge advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I only scorned good advice and felt that my case was hopeless, but she kept at me until I bought a bottle and started taking it. I soon had the best reason in the world to change my opinion of the medicine, as each day my health improved, and finally I was entirely without pain at my menstruation periods. I am most grateful."—NETTIE BLACKMORE, 28 Central Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

Painful Periods

are quickly and permanently overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The above letter is only one of hundreds of thousands which prove this statement to be a fact. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality, if it is painful something is wrong. Don't take narcotics to deaden the pain, but remove the cause—perhaps it is caused by irregularity or womb displacements, or the development of a tumor. Whatever it is, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is guaranteed to cure it.

If there is anything about your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

Details of Another Case.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and carelessness is the cause of most of the sufferings of women. I believe that if we properly understood the laws of health we would all be well, but if the sick women only knew the truth about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they would be saved much suffering and would soon be cured.

"I used it for five months for a local difficulty which had troubled me for years, and for which I had spent hundreds of dollars in the vain endeavor to rectify. My life forces were being sapped, and I was daily losing my vitality.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me completely, and I am now enjoying the best of health, and am most grateful, and only too pleased to endorse such a great remedy."—MISS JENNIE L. EDWARDS, 604 H St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women.

WHAT OVERWORK REALLY MEANS.

What a long story is condensed in that one word, which Mrs. Frye uses in her letter—as if "over-work" were a matter of course.

How many persons ever stop to realize that "over-work" simply means that their vitality has not been sufficient for the duties of the day—the work has probably been no more than a normally healthy person could do with ease.

Instead of calling it "over-work" it would be truer to speak of it as—"Under-vitality."

Remember, your strength is not in your muscles—the muscles simply work when the nerve force tells them to. Even your brain does not work by itself—the substance in your brain cells depends on getting energy with which to do its work; and this energy is nerve force—the same great power-of-life that actuates every function of the body.

Every form of weakness, or sickness, or disease, results from a lack of the strong nerve force which should keep the organs working properly.

When one speaks of "a good constitution," one simply means a sound, strong nerve system.

When the nerve system is not strong and well-nourished, it follows inevitably that one is easily "over-worked"—easily run down—just as Mrs. Frye describes:

"As a tonic and invigorator I am sure nothing equals Paine's Celery Compound. I have it always on hand.

"When weak and nervous, or restless from overwork, a dose of it soothes and strengthens me so that I wake up bright and refreshed, and fully capable of going through a strenuous day's work."—Mrs. Anna B. Frye, 122 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., August 5, 1904.

The nerves need food to keep up their strength. They feed on not the same food that we usually know.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth University, was the first physician to enunciate the principle which today is recognized as one of the foundations of the science of medicine—the great enlightening truth, that the nerve system rules all the body's health.

He sought and found the food that builds up and restores the nerves—the celery formula, which has become famous as Paine's Celery Compound—the celebrated nerve vitalizer and tonic.

Doctors know and value this prescription and make constant use of it in their practice.

Its effect is almost instantaneous—the nourishment and vigor given to the nerve system by Paine's Celery Compound is felt at once.

The patient feels this at once and gains confidence by it.

The stronger nerve forces have begun at once to make each organ of the body do the work that nature expects of it.

Two days' treatment with Paine's Celery Compound will prove its marvelous power.

Remember this—Paine's Celery Compound is the prescription of one of the most famous physicians this country has ever known, and all reputable druggists sell and recommend it.

BLAMES NURSE FOR LOSS OF APPETITE

Physician Who Attempted Triple Murder and Suicide While Intoxicated Has Remarkable Theory.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BIRMINGHAM, Mass., Oct. 14.—Dr. E. J. Belt, who shot Dr. Benjamin Jackson and Judson Strong, attempted to murder his fiancée and committed suicide, while under the influence of liquor, believed that the passion for drink that ruled him was imbued with the milk of the nurse who fed him while his mother was ill.

"She was a drunkard, saturated with whiskey, and I acquired the love of it with her milk," he said.

The brilliant young doctor was a fatalist, and although he struggled to free himself from the chains of the habit he believed that to struggle was futile for he was convinced that in babyhood he acquired a tendency, not present in his ancestry, but which was as strong in his grip as prenatal influence, and which he felt was as sure in its effect as predilection.

These facts were revealed by Dr. Jackson, who has recovered from his wounds sufficiently to be able to talk of the shooting for the first time. Dr. Jackson said that Belt frequently asserted to him that he was a victim of the circumstances of his babyhood. The condition of Judson Strong remains unchanged. His physicians fear a hemorrhage or blood poisoning.

Blanche Bates in Repertoire in November

Blanche Bates is to give us a treat at the Imperial the latter part of next month. Her engagement in "The Darling of the Gods" will end Dec. 1, and during the last two weeks the actress will be seen in repertoire, playing "Madame Butterfly," a drama by Long and Benasco, authors of "The Darling of the Gods," and "Hedda Gabler," by Henrik Ibsen. In addition to the drama of old Japan in which she is now appearing, the engagement at the Imperial has been the best of the theatrical successes in St. Louis during the Fair. Miss Bates will take "The Darling of the Gods" to the Pacific coast after her St. Louis engagement.

There will be three matinees of "Ben Hur" at the Olympic next week. The production is doing such an enormous business that a Thursday matinee will be given for the purpose of better meeting the demand. The Olympic is sold out for every one of the night performances before noon, and the records "Ben Hur" made in Chicago, New York and St. Louis in former years are all going glimmering.

Madame Rejane, the French actress, will be at the Olympic Theater the week before Christmas. She is to be in the United States but twelve weeks, four of which will be given to New York, two each to Chicago and Boston and one each to St. Louis, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Montreal and Washington.

Next Sunday night's dramatic offering by the German Stock Company at the Olympic Theater will be the new folk play, "The Man in the Moon" (Der Mann im Mond). This latest work by Jacobson and Stenau contains much good song and dance music, and gives Director George Heilmann and Leona Berkner a good opportunity to present themselves in the new season with all the delightful mastery they have in comedy work. The next three novelties now in preparation are "Zapfenstreich" (Taps), "Der Hochtourist" (The Mountain Tourist), and "Platz den Frauen" (Room for the Ladies).

There's a good deal of quiet irony in that advertisement of Wm. A. Brady for "The Pit." "Men with weak exchange experience preferred" opens up a whole volume of speculation. How they came to get their stock exchange experience, what it cost them and what it has finally brought them to will probably be fully explained to the public before these supers get through with their engagement at the Century Theater, for Mr. Brady was never known to let a good advertisement die of innocuous desuetude. The task of rehearsing these 50 actors will be conducted this week by Mr. Brady himself. He has been in Chicago for the past two weeks training the mob that is to appear in the Fishy incident of "Siberia," which was produced in that city last Sunday night. He came to St. Louis yesterday and will get the crowd of supers in readiness for the panic scene in "The Pit," which will be seen here for the first time on Sunday evening next.

In the panic scene of "The Pit" in Minneapolis last night forty of the most prominent members of the board of trade appeared on the stage, taking opposite sides in the pit scene as "bulls" and "bears."

There was commotion in Kiralfy's big company at the Odeon early in the week that had all the elements of an opera house war and tended to dramatize for a time the future efficiency of the Louisiana purchase and its how it happened.

Mr. Kiralfy, deciding that a grouping upon the steps of the castle of the mound builders would add to the closing tableau of the scene because of the piling of colors, directed the chorus ladies to take position on the steps.

The chorus ladies took their places accordingly and would have remained in them without a temporary break to be described had it not been for an untoward event which no human foresight could have encompassed.

It is a fact not generally known that Kiralfy's pony ballet is looked in their dressing room from the time of their entrance to the theater until they are let loose upon the stage. The scene is founded upon a couple of hundred dollars' worth of damage done by the children comprising the pony ballet in their wild state to scenery and other stage effects, long ago suggested this course. Through the grim irony of fate, on the particular night the chorus ladies stood upon the castle steps for the first time the back to the door of the ponies dressing room was broken and the ponies, finding themselves at liberty, began regulating things generally on the stage. They spied the chorus ladies standing on the King's steps, and then the fun began. They gazed those state ladies unmercifully, one saying, "Gee, come down from your perch, 'nother, 'nother, you have promoted a few steps higher."

Now when it is remembered that the ponies' mothers, the irony of the taunts of the children may be inferred. Tears filled their eyes, and at the close of the scene ten of them with one accord donned their street clothes and out of the theater into the night air to the utter amazement of principals, cornettes and stage hands generally. It was a real trial, but it did not last long. The chorus girls assembled in a dress store near the theater and adopted resolutions in which they demanded everything in sight. But that night, after dressing, they were out of job and seeing visions of unbuttered bread and plain clothes, they concluded it was not Kiralfy's fault and went back to their work.

The new Garrick Theater is rapidly nearing completion, and the opening has been announced for the last week in November. Sam S. Shubert, head of the firm of the Messrs. Shubert, is here this week in consultation with Mr. William Albert Swamy, the architect of the new Garrick, relative to fixing a definite date for the opening.

Mr. Shubert announces that only the best and highest class attractions in the musical and dramatic way will be played at the new Garrick. It was originally intended that "Fantasia," the big Shubert success, should open the St. Louis house, but it has scored so heavily in Chicago that the plans have here to be changed and it is likely that "Da Wolf" Mopper, in his revival of "Wang," will have the honor of opening the doors of the new Garrick.

IN GOOD FAITH

We Offer to Refund the Price of Vinol if It Does Not Give Satisfaction.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT BY DRUGGISTS WOLFF-WILSON DRUG CO.

Since we originated the idea of selling Vinol on the "money back if not satisfied" plan, many other manufacturers have begun to advertise their goods on the same plan, and because of the fact that many of them are not acting in good faith, in regard to returning money to dissatisfied purchasers, or attaching exacting conditions to their "guarantee to return your money" that the public has become suspicious.

Now we want our customers and everybody in St. Louis to understand distinctly once for all that there is not, and never has been, "a string on" the Vinol guarantee. If you buy Vinol from us, use it in good faith, and find after a fair trial that it cannot benefit your case, we will positively agree to return your money without question. We require you to sign no statement, or refer to your friends as to your honesty—your word is good enough for us.

We simply mean what we say when we guarantee Vinol, for we know of no remedy that is more universally successful than Vinol, and although a hundred thousand dollars was spent last season in advertising Vinol on this plan, not one-half of one per cent. of the thousands of bottles sold were brought back to the druggist as unsatisfactory.

Was there ever such a record made by a medicine before? This must prove that Vinol was successful in more than 99 1/2 per cent. of the cases in which it was used.

This is easily accounted for when you remember that Vinol is an improved and up-to-date form of one of the oldest and best remedies known to mankind—cod liver oil. It gives you the medicinal body building elements of this famous old remedy in a highly concentrated and delicious form, but without oil or grease to upset the stomach and retard its action, making it doubly potent and popular, both with the profession and the people. NEW DIVORCE CANON VOTED BY DEPUTIES Stirring Debate Closes With Victory of Those Who Would Forbid the Remarriage of Any Divorced Person Regardless of Cause.

QUESTION NOW GOES TO THE HOUSE OF BISHOPS

Committee on Prayerbook Report Against Omission of Name "Protestant Episcopal" at Present—Early Discussion of Question Is Ordered.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—The house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal general convention, as a committee of the whole, voted, 214 to 191, in favor of reporting to the house of bishops the canon amendment forbidding the remarriage of any divorced person.

This action brings to a close the stirring public debate of three days of the church reported to the house of deputies that it had been unable to define the terms "communion" as requested by the diocese of Albany. Upon the recommendation of the committee a special committee was appointed to report to the next convention on the subject.

A proposition bearing on changing the name of the church came before the house when the committee on prayerbook reported that it considered it inexpedient to strike the words "Protestant Episcopal" from the title page of the prayerbook. In view of the fact that the joint committee appointed three years ago to consider a change in the name of the church had reported in favor of making no change at this time.

The committee's report was upon a resolution to strike the two words from the prayerbook. Introduced by Rev. B. Talbot Rogers of Fond du Lac, Wis., Mr. Rogers moved that his resolution be placed on the calendar. The action was ordered and the matter will be discussed later.

Rev. Dr. Reece Alsop of Brooklyn, in presenting the report of a special committee to consider requests for the use of the revised version of the Bible in churches, recommended the use of the Westminster Bible at morning and evening prayers. The question will be discussed later.

Of the number, 280 were full term and 320 monthly passes. The revalidation system went into effect Aug. 29 and was completed Sept. 10.

DEMOCRATS JOIN TO OPPOSE WOOD

Leading Partisans Refuse to Support Butler Nominee for Congress in Twelfth District.

PLAN AN INDEPENDENT TICKET

John F. Lee and Henry T. Kent, Leaders in Movement—Wood Says He'll Not Withdraw.

Representative Democrats of the Twelfth congressional district have decided to put an independent Democratic candidate in the field against Ernest E. Wood, the Butler nominee, who admits that he has never cast a vote at an election since coming to St. Louis five years ago.

Mr. Wood is a native of California. How he got the support of the Butlers for the congressional nomination is one of the mysteries which even well-informed politicians are unable to definitely unravel.

This much is known: When Congressman James J. Butler concluded not to seek a renomination the district lieutenants under the leadership of "Stik" Gulon decided to pick a candidate whom they thought would supply the largest amount of cash for "campaign purposes." It appears Wood was willing to contribute to the best of his ability, so the "gang" began to huddle for Wood, who is an entirely new factor in St. Louis politics and who is scarcely known, it is said, outside of his own voting precinct.

The movement to spring a candidate who will in every way represent the interests of the Twelfth is being engineered by John F. Lee, Henry T. Kent and other prominent Democrats.

A petition to this effect will be circulated within the next few days among the Democrats of the district.

Mr. Wood, in an interview with the Post-Dispatch Friday morning, declared that he would not under any circumstances withdraw.

"If anybody takes me for a fool he is mistaken. I certainly would be a fool to surrender the congressional nomination after being fairly selected at a convention of the Democrats of the Twelfth district. I am in the race to stay. So far as an independent candidate is concerned I wish they would put up one. That would strengthen me all the more. My enemies say I am unknown. I dare say I know a great many more people in the Twelfth district than does Mr. Courdry, the Republican candidate, whom I consider a very good man."

"Will you make any speeches?" Mr. Wood was asked.

"I have not decided whether I shall or not. I do not know that there will any need for me to make speeches. I am going to get the support of all the Democrats in that district."

The Twelfth district has a normal Democratic majority of 280.

Mr. Wood said he was a native of California and had been in St. Louis for five years.

"Man wants but little here below," he said.

"So you should fill his cup."

"For craft will generally go."

"To someone higher up."

Its effect is truly magical and gives complete relief in from 2 to 5 minutes."

HIS SCARS FIGURE IN SCHEEL TRAGEDY

City Ambulance Driver Is Arrested on Charge of Attempting Illegal Registration.

DENIES COMPLICITY IN MURDER

Thomas L. Furey Says He Was Not at Polling Place When Scheel Was Killed.

Because of his misfortune in having his face scarred by fire when he was a child, Thomas L. Furey, driver of a city ambulance, has been arrested on the charge of having attempted to register illegally at 60 North Fourteenth street, Sept. 13, prior to the disturbance growing out of attempted illegal registration in which shots were fired and Frederick L. Scheel of Belleville was killed.

Oliver J. Beck, at whom the shots were fired, has identified Furey as a man who was at the polling place before the disturbance, but five other election officials who were at the polling place say they have no recollection of having seen Furey there.

Furey himself claims that he can easily establish an alibi.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton has declined to issue a warrant, preferring to have the case go direct to the grand jury and the grand jury will take up the case Monday.

Purey was arrested by Detectives Smythe and Lardner on a description furnished by Beck. There is no specific charge against him.

Of the six election officials who were in the booth at 60 North Fourteenth street when the men attempted to register from the Jefferson Hotel Beck is the only one who says Furey was there.

The other five are: F. H. Nettles, Republican clerk, 1238 Washington avenue; Otto Price, Republican clerk, 145 Washington avenue; Edward Sweeney, Democratic clerk, 710 North High street; Thomas Crawford, Democratic judge, 1415 Washington avenue.

Beck, according to Chief of Detectives Desmond, is not positive that Furey entered with the men who attempted to register from the Jefferson Hotel, but he was positive that Furey was in the polling place near the time of the disturbance.

Furey's face is scarred from burns received when he was a child that it is easy to remember.

Purey was seen Friday at his home, 810 North Seventeenth street. He denied participating in the election riot in which Frederick Scheel was killed.

"I had nothing to do with that trouble," he said. "I was at home until 2 o'clock that afternoon. It was just 2 o'clock when I left the house and went straight to Seventh and Morgan street, and was there for a long time. I was there at the time the shooting took place. I did not know anything about it until I got home in the evening."

"I was not at the registration place at St. Charles and Fourteenth streets that day. I am registered at the polling place near Seventeenth and Morgan streets. I had no occasion to go to the other place."

WOMAN PRISONER TO PLEAD INSANITY

Attorney for Mrs. Mary Langdon Tells Plans of Defense—She Has Not Yet Arrived.

Mrs. Mary E. Langdon, who was arrested last Saturday at San Diego, Cal., on the charge of forging a check on the estate of Mrs. Hattie McCall Travis, a World's Fair concessionaire, whose arrival in St. Louis has been awaited since Tuesday, has not arrived. When she appears she will plead insanity, according to her attorney, Joseph Wheelock, who has offices in the Laclede building.

Mrs. Langdon's arrival is anxiously watched for in the Thiel Detective Agency, under whose direction she was arrested, and at the Four Courts Attorney Wheelock waits for his client, for whom, he states, he has already arranged bond.

Mrs. Langdon's mother, Mrs. Blakesly, also awaits the arrival of her daughter at the Four Courts.

Attorney Wheelock represented Mrs. Langdon before she left St. Louis prior to her preliminary hearing and he is confident that she believes she is insane and that lunatic inquisition will be asked for, he says.

The Silgo Iron Store Co. of 546 North Second street is one of the complainants against Mrs. Langdon.

GRANDJURY PRUNES REGISTRATION LIST

Orders Seven Hundred Names Taken Off Books in Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Wards.

It was announced Friday that the St. Louis grand jury had completed its investigation into charges of registration frauds in the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth wards, and had, as a result of evidence submitted to them, ordered the judges and clerks to remove from the registration books 700 names, which, it is charged, were fraudulently placed on the books.

These names are about equally divided between the four wards, and there is a belief that the removal of them from the books will have an important effect upon the result of the election in those wards. Investigation into conditions in other wards is proceeding.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Hancock declares that this investigation has been the most satisfactory and effective that has been conducted, in regard to election or registration frauds, in many years. All the clerks and judges of election in the four wards have been witnesses before the grand jury.

It is alleged that the grand jury found several rooming houses from which 25 or even as high as 75 names had been registered. Investigation showed in several cases that not more than three or four of the men so registered were legally qualified as voters.

GARNERED "THEM PUNKINS" ASLEEP

Caleb Dallied and Worried, Then in Somnambulistic Fervor Harvested Big Crop.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.

EGG HARBOR CITY, N. J., Oct. 12.—Caleb Cavalier, down near Lower Bank, was a fine crop of pumpkins in these parts. In fact he has so many of them that every time he looked down the field it made him shiver at the thought of harvesting them. Every time he sat down to a meal his wife, Mary, would say: "Caleb, when're you going to bring in them punkins?"

Poor Caleb worried and worried and the pumpkins got more and more yellow. It got so bad with Caleb he would turn over in his sleep and talked about pumpkins. Last night when everything was quiet Caleb got up.

"What you going to do, Caleb?" asked the wife.

"The horses are kicking the punkins," said Caleb, very drowsy like. Mary Cavalier window saw just what was going on. She got out of bed and went to the door. She saw Caleb in the field in the dark, and pretty soon, when Mary was thinking of going to look for him, along came Caleb in the wagon, and the wagon was just bursting with pumpkins.

"Land sakes! Caleb must be asleep or crazy," cried the astonished wife. He didn't say anything to his wife, and she didn't disturb him.

Caleb was a little late rising this morning, and when he looked out of the window and saw the pile of pumpkins he called: "Mary, Mary, come here quick. Some one's harvested all the pumpkins I been raising."

Caleb, you started in all them punkins yourself in your sleep last night," explained Mary. "It's the first time you've been asleep walking in night ten years, but it was a mighty good thing."

Mrs. Grace W. Musick of Chicago is the soloist of the symphony concert to be given at 4:30 o'clock in Festival Hall this afternoon. She will appear in conjunction with the full Exposition orchestra of 50 pieces, under the direction of Alfred Ernst. Mrs. Musick is a contralto whose voice is said to have an extraordinary range. Her two arias, "O Don Fausto," by Verdi, and a selection from Saint-Saens, "Samson and Delilah," should be acceptable. R. K. Miller of Philadelphia gives a concert on the grand organ, beginning at 8 o'clock in the evening. The Mexican bands play on the Plaza of St. Louis from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 8 to 8 o'clock at night.

For years he has suffered with catarrh in its worst form.

Although he resorted to the latest scientific treatment, and consulted many of his brother physicians, Dr. Hart finally said: "I might just as well have thrown my money in the river, for I grew worse and worse. My wife and I will swear that Hyomei cured me of the worst case of catarrh that ever existed."

Dr. Hart, the famous treatment which cures catarrh without stomach dosing. A complete outfit costs but $1.00, extra bottles, 10c. They sell it under guarantee to refund the money if it does not give quick relief.

WIDOW IS PRIZE IN PINOCHLE CONTEST

As Supplemental Prize, There Is Her Fortune of $25,000 and Two Are Entered.

SHE COULD NOT DECIDE

Left Contest Open, With Condition That Sea Captain and Carpenter Were Not to Fight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
GUTTENBURG, N. J., Oct. 14.—Much interest is expressed in the heralded duel with cards for the hand of a fair widow of Guttenburg.

"Ach, it makes my head ache. You must decide between you, only there must be no duels, no killing and no fighting. The one who wins, I marry, all right. I like you both so well I do not know what to do."

That is what the widow, Mrs. Amelia Arkland, said when she was confronted with the proposition of the old sea dog, Capt. John Taylor, and the industrious carpenter, Reinhold Von Blessing. So it was decided that there should be a game of cards, of pinochle, and such a game!

The winner is to have the widow's consent to marriage, and they are to live happily ever afterward.

It all came about in quite the most natural way. Mrs. Arkland, plump, prosperous and a tidy little housewife, is not old a bit, even if she has had three trips to the matrimonial mart and become twice the widow that she is. Her charms seem irresistible, and of the gallant ones who have laid siege to her heart and hand for the fourth time are the well-to-do chums, Messing and Taylor. Both sighed deeply as they watched the widow dividing honors and glances about equally between them, for they often called at her lovely little home at the same time.

Supplemental
Prize of $25,000.

What if it is reported that the plump Mrs. Arkland is blessed with a fortune of $25,000? They did not mind such a trifling matter nor regard it as a stumbling block in their path to the heart of the fair one.

Nor was Mrs. Arkland so deeply affected by the funeral of the late Mr. Arkland as to fall to notice the good points of her admirers when they presented themselves for the vacancy in the home. The situation was as desperate as love can make things.

It must all come out right, for the widow has decreed that it must. She invited the rivals for her hand and heart to meet in the parlor of her home, 22 Hudson street, when she said she would let them into a plan for clearing up the situation. Both men were on hand with that refreshing promptness which denoted full and complete interest in the matter under consideration.

There was none of that painful silence which, according to the book users, precedes the solution of delicate problems in which the heart is concerned. The widow just said it into it as if it were four and molasses and she was making lots of toothsome cookies, rolling out the dough and cutting out the cakes.

"As we all know," said the widow, by way of prologue to her speech, "I am presented, both of you have asked me to marry him, which I can not do, because the law will not let me, but I like you both so well that I hardly know what to do."

Tells How Case Stands.

The captain and the carpenter started to speak at once, but Mrs. Arkland stopped them with a wave of the so greatly coveted hand. "Reinhold," she said, "was born in Berlin, and he played together as children in the streets. I always loved my own country people." The carpenter smiled eloquently at the captain. But the widow was not done. "And then I must remember," she said, "that John here is a sea captain, and my father, John Beck, was sea captain in the fatherland, and my first husband—he was a sea captain too, before he went into the saloon business."

The captain smiled at the carpenter. "I have known John only ten years," he went on, "but he has been a good friend. He never missed a single one of my husband's funerals. But I have known Reinhold all my life. Ach! it is too much for me. It makes my head ache. I would take either one of you, but I cannot take you both. Decide it between you some way. The winner I marry. Only there must be no shooting, no shooting. I have had enough of burying men since I came to this country."

Pinochle Challenge
Immediately Taken.

So right away Von Blessing suggested pinochle and the captain accepted on the spot. He knows a thing or two about the game himself. Before the conference broke up most of the terms of the pastebard duel had been arranged. The two men are to play 100 games. There are 100 points to be won or lost in each game and on an average a game requires thirty minutes to play it. This means fifty hours of play before the further matrimonial destinies of the widow Arkland are fixed. As yet the rivals have not decided upon the exact game or place for beginning, but neither is in a frame of mind to consent to long delay. Guttenburg expects an announcement of the result with the simultaneous details of the wedding within a week.

There is a report that the captain, being of sturdy frame, will insist on playing the whole set of 100 games at a sitting, hoping thus to wear his opponent out. But the German residents are putting their money on Reinhold Von Blessing.

KEENE IS AGAIN BULLING MARKETS

Morgan, Rockefeller et al, Likes His Exciting Touch and Assist Him to Regain Standing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—James R. Keene, one of the greatest manipulators that Wall street has ever known, is in full command of the bull faction there by special commission from J. Pierpont Morgan and John D. Rockefeller. It is not many months since Mr. Keene was said to have lost an immense sum and to be so badly crippled financially that his enemies hoped he never again would be a factor in the stock market, but his genius in moving the market is so great that the master men of finance cannot spare him.

When Messrs. Morgan and Rockefeller turned to him for assistance, it recalled the remark attributed to Russell Sage when Mr. Keene was believed to have the late Jay Gould in a tight corner. It was stated at the time that when Mr. Sage turned to Mr. Gould's assistance he remarked:

"Mr. Gould is too valuable a man to be kept off Wall street."

Mr. Keene, like his old opponent in the stock market, is a great stimulator of stock trading. Close observers of the market have thought that they detected the hand of Mr. Keene in stock movements of a few weeks past. He is said to have lost $100,000 in the campaign which ended in a victory for the bulls. He is a multi-millionaire. He has always cared less for possession of money than for the excitement of making it.

The sudden rise in Steel Trust shares and the advance in St. Paul is attributed to his hand. One of his strongest sources of strength is his personal following. He gained and retained it by sticking by his friends. Unlike other great leaders in the stock market, he never unloaded on them to protect his personal interests. He is commissioned, now it is said, to establish public faith in the stability of the bull market in order to bring about the "digestion" of more securities.

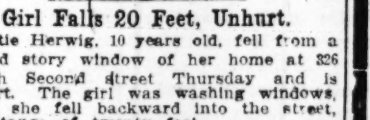

Mr. Keene is 53 years old. He is gray, but not infirm. He has a quick, light step, a cheery manner and a sanguine face. He was a lawyer, newspaper writer and curb broker in San Francisco, a man of many failures and many successes. His friends returned from a year's voyage to find that stock he had bought for a few hundred dollars was worth $200,000. He increased his fortune until he was worth millions. Then he lost it in a grain market speculation against Jay Gould and Addison Cammack.

He regained his lost millions and many more and was worth $2,000,000 in working capital when he was in control of Steel Trust shares, and the most prominent operator in the market for 1903. He put all available money on the long side of the market and sustained a staggering loss when the market turned. His friends believe that he will emerge from this latest campaign as rich as ever.

HE REFUSED TO EAT AT HOME
Hearing on the petition of Mrs. Ellen Manning, 66 years old, for divorce from Timothy W. Manning, 68 years old, to whom she was married Sept. 12, 1861, was resumed in Judge Kinney's division of the circuit court Friday.

Mrs. Manning testified Thursday that her husband frequently quarreled with her and their children. For a period, she said, he was under the influence of a trance medium and would not eat his meals at home. The couple have two daughters, Mrs. Julia Gerardy and Mrs. Anna Burns of Oklahoma. Mrs. Burns testified Thursday in corroboration of her mother's story. The couple separated in September, 1903.

WOMAN'S ACT SAVES LIFE

Maj. Bittinger of St. Joseph Prevented From Falling Out of Scenic Railway Car.

Maj. J. L. Bittinger of St. Joseph, Mo., former consul-general of the United States to Montreal, Canada, who is a World's Fair visitor, probably owes his life to a young woman, who, upon seeing him about to fall from a car on a scenic railway at the World's Fair, clutched his arm and prevented him from falling until the car could be brought to a stop. She declined to give her name.

Maj. Bittinger and his party, including a number of ladies, were taking a scenic railway ride. The car had just gone down one incline and was turning a curve to plunge down another, when Maj. Bittinger, who was seated at the rear of the car, when the young lady at his side, a member of his party, caught his arm and prevented him from falling.

The car was brought to a stop immediately and Maj. Bittinger was taken to his room at the inside inn. After a few hours rest he was entirely recovered.

NET RECEIPTS $3,950,836.66

Total of Admissions to World's Fair Less Than Chicago, But Operating Expenses Lighter.

An official statement of the department of admissions of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition up to the first of October shows the total gate receipts to be $3,950,836.66, or $1,171,307.59 less than the Chicago World's Fair.

The gate receipts for Chicago up to Oct. 1 were $5,122,144.25, divided as follows: May, $684,000.25; June, $1,250,180; July, $1,333,750; August, $1,344,813; September, $2,238,000.

The difference between the two world's fairs in operating expenses of the department of admissions favors the St. Louis fair.

The total expense of operation here has been $1,931,111 up to Oct. 1 in Chicago for the same period the amount was $2,469,727. Thus the net difference between the earnings of both fairs shows the sum of $2,988,388 in favor of the Chicago exposition.

INJURED BOY DIES AS MOTHER PRAYS

Christian Science Advocate Ordered
Physician Not to Attempt to Save
Lad Crushed by Truck.

SHE HURRIED TO THE CHURCH

Firmly Believed Her Supplications
Would Be of More Avail Than Material Help.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Possessed of so strong a faith in Christian Science that she could look upon her little son, crushed almost shapeless by a heavy wagon and dead, as a mere accident, Mrs. Minnie Hopkins of 420 West One Hundredth and Twenty-third street hurried to the First Church of Christian Scientists and knelt to save his life by prayer.

Even as she prayed her son died and the poor mother sank under the affliction.

Her boy, Bruce, was 7 years old. In kindergarten and sweater, with roller skates, he went to play in the street where there is fine asphalt. He fell in front of a heavy brewery truck and the wheels passed over his head, crushing it. He was dead, to all but the experienced eye of a surgeon when they picked him up and bore him to a hospital. Hard on the heels of the stretcher-bearers came the young mother.

"Is he dead?" she cried.
"No," said the doctor, "we can save his life by an operation." The physician knew it was an untruth, but he could not tell the truth to her.

"Wait, wait," she cried. "I know he will not die. He cannot die. What is evil, or ill, does not exist. You do not believe it. I do. See, even now I believe it. I forbid you to operate on my son. I can pray and prayer will save his life."

The astonished surgeons began to protest that death was a matter of moments, when the mother rushed from the room, her fingers to her ears, to shut out their words, and crying out an order that material aid be not given to her son.

As fast as a carriage could carry her, she drove to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of which she is a member, and there she was, kneeling in prayer. They told her that her boy was dead. He died while preparations were being made for the operation.

PARENTS REFUSED AID FOR SON ILL WITH DIPHTHERIA
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 14.—Prayers failed to save the life of Leslie Young, the 10-year-old son of Mrs. Harriet Young, who was taken down with the diphtheria ten days ago.

Mrs. Young is a Christian Scientist and refused to permit a physician to attend the child. The superintendent of the bureau of health, Dr. Kohn, is making an investigation and will probably lay the matter before the district attorney and ask that those responsible for refusing to have a physician be arrested for criminal negligence.

SURGEONS ADVOCATE CANTEEN

Congress in Session at World's Fair
Will Petition President for Its Re-Establishment.

A resolution will today be sent to President Roosevelt through the secretary of war by the Association of Military Surgeons now in session at the World's Fair asking that a field medical organization be provided for the American army equal to the medical organization of the army of any country.

Resolutions will also be sent to the President asking him to re-establish the army canteen, where it will be permissible to sell beer to the soldiers under the supervision of the officers of the army. The abolition of the canteen, the surgeons declare, was the cause of much sickness among the soldiers for the reason that they patronized all manner of dives which were up about the army posts immediately after the order abolishing the canteen was issued.

That instruction in sanitation be added to the curriculum at West Point and Annapolis is another recommendation of the surgeons, who say that one of the requirements for graduation should include a thorough knowledge of this subject, which is one of the first with which an army or naval officer has to deal.

for International Missionary Association Convention.

Five thousand persons are expected to attend the first session of the International Missionary Association convention in the Coliseum at Fourteenth and Olive streets at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. Delegates already here say that probably 2,000 men and women will be in attendance at the convention before adjournment.

W. H. McClain, general manager of the Provident Association, will open the meeting with an address of welcome. Rev. Z. T. Sweeney, president of the International Missionary Association, will deliver an address. At 3:40 o'clock Rev. H. C. Williams, a missionary from Porto Rico, will deliver an address.

The object of the convention is to discuss plans for evangelization of the world. Ten thousand churches, with 1,500,000 members, are represented.

An informal session preceding the actual convention was held at the Coliseum Thursday night. The Century choir of 1000 voices, led by W. Davies Pittman, sang vocal selections and a number of addresses were made.

NO HONORS FOR BARKEEP

Manager of Railroad Changes Name of Engine Christened for Former Mayor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 14.—Because ex-Mayor Brenton, after failing in his candidacy for re-election, embarked in the saloon business as bartender for B. F. Parker and further advertised himself as engaging in public wrestling matches with Jim Parr, the English champion, the huge electric locomotive, the pride of the Des Moines street railway, which was christened "Jim Brenton" with elaborate ceremony, has been rechristened and the old name painted out.

J. B. Folk, the millionaire electric railway man, issued the order for the change. He is a radical temperance advocate.

Brown of the New York Central. The party spent a few hours of the World's Fair Thursday afternoon, and in the evening watched the illumination from the Vanderbilt car.

CLEVELAND LIKELY TO SPEAK AGAIN

Cleveland Is Not Positive That
New York Appearance Will Be Final.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland is likely to speak more than once for Parker and Davis, notwithstanding that it had been supposed heretofore that his coming address in New York would be his only public participation in the canvass. To a Public Ledger correspondent at Princeton he said:

"I have made only one engagement to speak as yet. That will be at the meeting to be held in New York on Friday evening of next week. I should not like to say whether that will be the only speech which I shall deliver in the campaign, for the reason that I do not know what special conditions may arise in the few remaining weeks. It is not impossible that my present view of the matter may be altered. When it was suggested to Mr. Cleveland that the voters of both parties would like to hear from him now as to the aspects of the presidential canvass, especially as to the leading issues and as to his opinion concerning the situation in certain of the 'doubtful' states, he replied:

"I do not know what I can say in regard to the issues that I have not already said. My position on national questions is tolerably well known.

"It would be foolish for me to attempt to say anything upon a subject about which I am so ill informed as the political details of the campaign. I have been remote from the centers of political news for so long that I do not feel competent to discuss such matters, much less to play the critic in regard to questions of party management."

Mr. Cleveland said that he had strong hope of Democratic success, and he reiterated the high praise which he has so often bestowed upon Judge Parker.

Superintendent Gets Medal.
John T. Stinson, superintendent of zoology of the World's Fair, has been presented a gold medal by the exhibitors in the Palace of Agriculture Thursday as an acknowledgment of his services.

W. C. T. U. Delegates Arrive.
Representatives from 35 states have arrived in St. Louis to attend the national convention of the W. C. T. U., which will be held next week. A reception was tendered the visitors Thursday afternoon in the Missouri building at the World's Fair. There were 50 guests present.

POSING AS WIFE DID NOT BAR HER

Washington Decision Brings Joy to Fair Immigrant's Fiance, But Companion Will Be Deported.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Miss Mary Healey, the English girl who posed as the wife of Hugh Stanton, a friend in order that she might not be separated from her uncle and aunt on their voyage over to the western land, will be released from detention by the immigration officials today in accordance with instruction from Washington.

When the deception was discovered the authorities ordered that both be deported or she marry Mr. Stanton. Mr. and Mrs. John Fay, the uncle and aunt, of New York, appealed to Washington in the girl's behalf, but neglected to include Stanton in their appeal, and as he made no move in his own defense he may be deported under the order as it stands.

Miss Healey's fiance, Mr. White of New York, appeared at the immigration detention hotel in the afternoon much upset over the predicament of his sweetheart. Fearing she would not be fed well, he sent up to her room enough supper for three, and spent much of the evening on the sidewalk outside the detention hotel conversing with Miss Healey, who stationed herself at a second-story window.

DOWN-EASTER HAS A NOVEL AIRSHIP

Bridgeport Machinist Invents an Aeroplane in Which He Can Really Fly Where He Wishes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—M. Santos-Dumont's latest rival is a humble machinist living at Bridgeport, Conn., who has invented what he calls an aeroplane, and is firm in the belief that he has solved the long-mooted question of dirigibility in the operation of airships.

Gustave Whitehead, the inventor, lives at 241 Pine street, Bridgeport. His aeroplane is of the simplest possible construction. It is 18 feet from tip to tip of the "wings," which are six feet in width. There are three of these wings at each side of the machine, and in flight they fill like the sails of a ship, adding to the buoyancy of the aeroplane.

The framework of this airship is constructed of the lightest kind of spruce timber and is tightly braced by fine steel wires. In the rear of the aeroplane is a rudder shaped like a pyramid that has been pushed over on its side. This rudder is in constant rotation when the machine is in flight. Its weight is reduced to the minimum, being composed of a light and firm frame over which is stretched stout canvas.

The position of the man operating the machine during flight is below the two upper and between the two lower aeroplanes, or "wings." He is held in place securely by means of connecting belts and straps.

The inventor says that he has given years of study to this seemingly simple part of his airship so as to render its operation at any height safe and certain. He says that the position of the operator has all to do with the success of the machine. The weight of the operator has no effect whatever on the results, for the reason that his seat is exactly at the point of equilibrium of the machine.

The power is supplied by a gasoline motor of ten-horsepower. Its weight is exactly 44 pounds, the minimum for the force that it is capable of exerting. The motor is immediately behind the operator, while the propellers are in front of the machine. In operation they pull the airship rather than push it, as in the case of the Santos-Dumont airships.

In a series of recent experiments Whitehead rose to a height of from 50 to 75 feet, turned in midair with ease and twice he sailed a distance of nearly a third of a mile. On a comparatively still day the machine readily responded to both propeller and rudder.

The inventor hopes some enthusiast with the necessary money will come forward and give him the help he needs in his work.

THREE GARBAGE PLANTS PLANNED

The Board of Public Improvements expects to take action at its meeting Tuesday on a garbage ordinance, now being prepared.

The present garbage contract expires Nov. 14. Should the new ordinance be approved by the board and pass both houses of the Assembly in the shortest possible time, there would still not be sufficient time to make arrangements for the reduction of garbage before the present contract expires.

A majority of members of the Board of Public Improvements have given the promise that the board will take care of the garbage question, and that the Butler company, which now has the contract, will have nothing to do with it in the future.

The ordinance now being prepared will provide for the establishment of three plants in different parts of the city for the reduction of garbage.

USELESSNESS OF GOING MAD

By Nicola Greeley-Smith, Granddaughter of Horace Greeley.

Written for the Post-Dispatch.

A Mr. Morris Peacock, on Saturday engaged himself to a Miss Ida Green, whom he had wooed persistently for several weeks. On Sunday Miss Green, happy in the contemplation of her new-found happiness, was starting idly out of her bedroom when she perceived her father, Mr. Peacock, accompanied by a strange young woman. Needless to say she rushed from the house and demanded an explanation from the dismayed culprit, who upon being interrogated by his companion, promptly declared that he had never seen the wild-eyed Nemesis before.

Confronted by this new evidence of his duplicity, there was but one thing left for the young woman to do. She went mad from jealousy and has been sent to Bellevue, leaving Peacock at liberty to walk with as many different charmers as he sees fit.

The futility of jealousy could not be better demonstrated than by this case. For jealousy having made her mad, her madness in turn will furnish the innocent suitor with the best excuse possible for his behavior.

To be sure, there is the precedent of the gentle Ophelia, whose madness was brought about by the neglect of the philosophic Hamlet. But it will be remembered that Ophelia didn't accomplish anything by it even in her own time, and that her methods are altogether inadequate to this more progressive age. Nowadays eternal viglance is the price of matrimony, and that engaged girl who makes up her mind that her task is finished when the betrothal ring sparkles on her finger has indeed everything to learn.

It is my personal observation that for one man who marries because he wants to, there are nine who marry because they can't help themselves.

There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to matrimony.

And the woman with the most experience on the uncertain seas of courtship is liable to be most successful in luring him into the marriage harbor.

Most bachelors think men marry themselves, but every married man knows better.

Ask any one you know well enough to interrogate on the subject, and it's ten to one he'll answer, "Well, to tell you the truth, I don't know how it came about. Did I ask her? No, I think not. It just happened. I was as much surprised as anybody else."

The peril of long engagements, about which one hears so much, lies merely in the fact that they give a man time enough to change his mind, something he is very liable to do if he has half a chance.

The only thing to do with an engaged man is to marry him as soon as possible.

The trouble with the young woman who went mad was that she gave her affianced time to go walking with another girl. It was only in the nature of the animal that he should profit by it. Still one cannot help thinking that even Bellevue was a lucky escape for her, and that the worst fate that can overtake her rival is to continue her walk through life with him, but then that is usually the worst that could overtake one's rival, anyway.

REVOLUTION IN LITERARY IDEALS

Many Modern Writers Find Their Inspiration Far Down in the Underworld of the Poor.

Replying to Gertrude Atherton, the famous novelist who charged that modern literature was largely bourgeois, or middle-class, and lacking in the power to inspire or uplift its readers, Upton Sinclair, in Collier's Weekly, calls attention to the fact that many great writers have abandoned the middle-class literary ideal entirely, and find their motive wholly in socialistic ideals. Mr. Sinclair says:

"Of course we are not all bourgeois, else we were lost. Many critics have risen up lately to Mrs. Atherton, and they have named many writers from Whitman on. The main point, however, all these defenders have missed, just as Mrs. Atherton missed the main point in her attack. All her argument would have at once become clear had she understood that what she was attacking was the literature of Capitalism, and all the arguments of her critics would have become clear had they only perceived that they were defending the literature of Socialism. Whitman himself, for instance, would, if he were alive today, be stamping the country for the Socialist ticket; all his followers are doing it, without exception, and the same thing is true of the followers of Emerson and Whitman, of Lincoln, Wendell Phillips, and every other freedom-loving man we ever had."

It all comes from the mighty revolution that is gathering its forces, far down in the underworld of the poor. It has been going on for forty or fifty years in Europe, from which Mrs. Atherton writes, and so it is that Europe has a party of rightness, and a literature that is neither bourgeois nor timid nor anaemic—but Socialist. Bjornson, Maeterlinck, Sudermann, Hauptmann, Ibsen, Tolstoy, Zola, Gorky—all these men are Socialists, or in sympathy with Socialism, and becoming more so every day; they cannot help it, for they see that by no other party can anything be done, and they see that something must be done, and they see that the world will drive them mad. Even Kropotkin, who once carried the red flag and cried out for dynamite, has joined their ranks; even the followers of Nietzsche are doing it—even Mr. Bernhard Shaw! And let any one imagine the amount of agony it must have taken to get Mr. Shaw into a political party; but here he is, and pleading for pardon. "We are told," he writes, "that when Jehovah created the world, he saw that it was good. What would he say now?"

The same thing is going on in this country—it is going on rapidly, for what takes a generation in Europe only takes a decade here. Mrs. Josephine Daskam Bacon, replying to Mrs. Atherton, quotes many authors who are not bourgeois.

Bret Harte and Mark Twain were, of course, absurd to mention, for they belong to another era; Bret Harte is dead and Mr. Clemens has not published anything since reading for long, long years. She names Mr. Howells, however, and Mr. Howells is a Socialist. She names Mr. Stewart Edward White, and Mr. Owen Wister, Mr. Thompson-Seton, and Mr. Henry Wallace Phillips; I do not know if these gentlemen are Socialists, but I notice that they all deal with the wilds and jungles of nature, and so may perhaps not know much about the wilds and jungles of the cities of civilized man. Some do know—Mr. Edwin Markham and Mr. Bruno Zeller, for instance—and these are Socialists. Others who took part in this debate named the late Frank Norris; I do not know if he was a conscious Socialist, but I do know that in "The Octopus" he wrote a book which furnishes to the Socialist one of his few indispensable campaign documents. They named Mr. Elmer Carman and Mr. Richard Le Gallienne, and these are Socialists. They also named Mr. Jack London, and Mr. Jack London is one of the leaders among the politically active Socialists of America."

Point of View.

Mrs. Weeks: There can be no domestic happiness unless there are mutual concessions.

Mrs. Strong: Nonsense! Me and my husband sit along all right, and I make him make all the concessions.—Chicago News.

A MOMENT'S MERRIMENT

ROOSEVELT.

From "Misrepresentative Men," by "Col. D. B. Strasser" (Harry Graham). Behold him! Squarely built and small. With hands that would resemble List's. Did they not forcibly recall The contour of Fitzsimmons' fists; Beneath whose velvet gloves you feel The politician's grip of steel.

In him combined we critics find The diplomatic skill of Choate, Elijah Dowie's breadth of mind, And Chauncey's fund of anecdote; He joins the morals of Susannah To Dr. Munyon's bedside manner.

The rugged virtues of his race He softens up with Dewey's tact, Combining Shafter's easy grace With all Bourke Cockran's love of fact; To Docley's powers of observation, He adds the charms of Carrie Nation.

No private ends has he to serve, No dirty linen needs to wash; A man of quite colossal nerve, Who lives sans peur et sans reproche; In modo savvier, may he be, But, then, how fortiter in re!

What He Missed.

Said Christopher Columbus, as he viewed the mighty Paik: "Well, goodness, heavenly gracious! I didn't know that that was there! Why I did not discover that I cannot understand. When I first gazed my eyes upon this great and wondrous land."

Said Christopher Columbus, as he gazed on Skinner Road, "Oh, would to God that I had been a Mis-sourian to be 'showed.' In those far-off, archaic days, when with my little crew I came over here 'discovering' in 1492."

Said Christopher Columbus, as he sauntered down the Pike, "Well, all that I can say is this—that this is what I like; And had I known that this was here, in all its light and glow, You bet your life I would have found it four hundred years ago!"

A Bum Hero.

"Pa," said little Johnny, "what are you readin' about?" "About a hero named 'Horatus,' my son." "Was he a baseball hero, pa?" "No." "A football hero, then?" "No, my child." "What sort of a hero was he, pa?" "He was a 'hero,' replied the patient father, "who held the enemy at bay and saved his city from destruction." "Oh, shucks!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Stephen Phillips' New Play.

Mr. Stephen Phillips has decided on "The Sin of David" as the title of his new play, which was announced two months ago under the title of "Miriam" or "The Sin of David." The Macmillan Company promises the book for issue October 19.

Security From Devils.

And I feel safe in saying that no other houses in the world are better protected against devils than those in which we are now billeted. We feel so secure that we sleep without giving them a thought. In the first place, as everybody knows, a devil must move in a straight line. And so inside the gate of the compound our hosts have erected a wall a few feet larger than the gate. The advantage of this is that, on entering, in order to avoid the wall, you must make a sharp turn, and as the devil cannot make a turn he finds himself outwitted and outside. It is a simple device, and yet how effective! There is also a second line of defense outside the house itself. It consists of two highly colored pictures of two fat gentlemen with ferocious expressions of countenance. These pictures are pasted on the panel of every house in Manchuria. They frighten the devils terribly. And, as though they were not a host in themselves, in the woodwork around the doors are carved mischievous grinning bats, and bats are the one thing a devil cannot abide. But should he overcome his repugnance to bats, and brave the fat gentlemen, he never can hope to escape the human eyes painted on the butt end of each jutting roof beam. There are sometimes 50 of these glaring into each compound, like the advertisements of the oculist. Should the devil make his way into the compound he is at once spied out and transfixed by these accusing, unwinking, convicting eyes. They never sleep, and as a result one feels just as safe here as he would on Broadway. Our compound, at least, is absolutely devil proof.—Richard Harding Davis in Collier's for October.

Fishing by Telephone.

A Norwegian has invented a queer way of finding out where the fish are. A microphone, which is an instrument that will catch and transmit the least little bit of sound, is lowered into the water from a fishing smack, and a wire from it leads to a telephone aboard the boat. Now, as the herring, codfish and mackerel schools number thousands and tens of thousands of fish, their passage through the water naturally causes a rushing sound, which can be heard by the fishermen at the telephone, and thus they are enabled to lower their nets at the right time and in the right place.

History of the Horse.

A noteworthy article in the November number of the Century will be the first complete account of the explorations of the American Museum of Natural History, under the William C. Whitney fund, into the evolution of the horse in America. The story of these explorations, which up to the present time have brought together more or less complete remains of 77 fossil horses, has been prepared by Henry Fairfield Osborn, Da Costa professor of Zoology in Columbia University and curator in the museum, who has had charge of the work. The article will be interestingly illustrated, and should excite the pride of Americans.

In the unexampled completeness of the self resources of the great New York museum.

Officially Blind.

Dr. Edward Waldo Emerson of Concord, is fond of telling of an old servant whose heart was exceedingly kind and in whom the qualities of pity and compassion were developed nearly to perfection. He was once driving his employer and Emerson through the country. As they approached a new house that the master was building they saw an old woman sneaking away with a bundle of wood. "Jabes, Jabes," cried the owner, "do you see that old woman taking my wood?" Jabes looked with pity at the old woman, then with scorn at his employer. "No, sir," he said stoutly, "I don't see her, and what's more I didn't think that you would see her either."

FAIR BLOW ENDED GREAT RING BATTLE

Abe Attell's Renown Did Not Shield Him From Defeat by Tommy Sullivan.

CLAIM OF FOUL WAS DENIED

After Turbulent Scene at Ringside, Friends of Both Joined in Acclaiming Winner.

BY J. W. MC CONAUGHY.

THE fight between Abe Attell and Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan from the pressbox at the West End Club last night. The left shift to Attell's body, which ended the battle in the fifth round, was a fair blow.

It was an unexpected finish of one of the greatest fights for four rounds in local ring history.

When the two men glided out of their corners at the opening of the fifth round, the great crowd that packed the big West End Club Coliseum was somewhat relaxed from the strain of watching the two white phantoms in the opening rounds. They saw that Brooklyn Tommy was holding his own and a little more, that Attell was the old marvel of speed that made him great, and they settled back to see the fastest fight ever fought in St. Louis.

There was a moment of silence as the men came together and sparred warily. Each had seen and respected the other's prowess, and they feinted in and out in quick flashes for several seconds. Attell was again short with a left for Sullivan's face and Tommy countered to the body as they closed. He punched Attell in the kidneys in the clinch, and they broke at the word. The crowd was now yelling for Sullivan again, and once more Attell's famous left flashed out with all its old wonderful speed. This time it was well judged, but quick at it came, Sullivan was faster.

With a movement so fast that the eye could hardly follow it, he shifted to the right and brought his own left hand under in a terrific uppercut for the stomach.

Attell was caught. He could neither block nor dodge. As a desperate chance to deaden the force of the blow he leaped into the air with his abdomen drawn in and his body bent forward. But Sullivan was too close and his left fist sank into the relaxed muscles with killing force. There was a sharp cry of pain from the Californian and he sank to the floor, his face contorted and his body writhing in seeming agony.

It was so apparent that he had no intention of getting up that Referee Sharpe did not trouble to give him the count. Attell was crying that he had been fouled, and Referee Sharpe called Drs. Marks and Parrish into the ring to make an examination. It was agreed before the fight that if either man claimed foul he would submit to an examination and abide by the decision of the doctors.

When the two physicians climbed into the arena the ringside was a howling bedlam. Sullivan was walking nervously about the ring assuring his friends that he had not fouled his man, and that Attell was faking the pain. The Missouri Athletic Club contingent was roaring for "Sullivan Sullivan." There was no attempt to keep the crowd in the seats, and they minute stood up and announced that Attell was faking the pain.

The "mott" of their song was execution of Attell, as nine out of 10 men in the house believed that the little fighter had "quit."

After several examinations the two doctors agreed that there was no evidence of a foul, but said they would like to have a third physician make an examination. Dr. Leland Boogher, a specialist, was called into the ring, and in less than a minute stood up and announced that Attell had not been struck foul.

A matter of fact, the blow landed almost in the same place that McClelland struck Attell in their last fight. It was below the stomach and to the right side. It was unquestionably a fair blow.

When the decision of the physicians, which sends Attell down into ring history as being knocked out in the fifth round by Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan, was announced, the demonstrators in and around the ring surpassed anything ever seen at the West End Club before. Few in the house, even the most devoted admirers of Sullivan, believed that he could beat Attell. None believed that he would knock him out and the coup in the fifth round was the climax of wave joy that had been

GETS SOME OF CATTLE BACK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 14.—W. H. McCreary of Omaha, Neb., has arrived here in an effort to locate a man who gave his name as James Munson and who swindled the Nebraskan out of $200 on a cattle deal. Munson purchased two carloads of fine black cattle from McCreary, who is a member of one of the largest cattle and horse firms in the country. He gave a draft on the Springfield aMrine Bank for payment. Then he shipped one car to Kansas City and sold them. The other was shipped to Springfield, Ill., and consigned to W. M. Cowan, 320 Main street. The cattle arrived some days ago over the Wabash, and the agent of the road has been endeavoring since to locate "Gowan." There is no Main street.

$500,000 Payment Saturday.
After the payment of the Exposition of $200,000 on the government loan of $2,000,000 only $300,000 will remain unpaid. This amount, it is said, will be paid before Nov. 1 and the Exposition will be clear of debt so far as the national government is concerned.

DE LACY'S CIN-KO-NA AND IRON

Is the Greatest Strengthening, Nerve, Blood-Building and Appetizing Tonic in the World.

Our straightforward business proposition to the general public "that the first bottle does you good or it costs you nothing" has met with the instantaneous success that an honest, conscientious offer should. Those suffering from Stomach Troubles, Malaria, Blood Disease and Catarrh should be deeply interested in De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron, for the reason that you can take the first bottle and get your money back without a question, if you can't see and feel that it has done you a world of good. You alone are the sole judge. If you are a sufferer from any of these diseases and fail to take advantage of this offer, then you are not only doing yourself an injustice, but your relatives and friends as well. Here are extracts from a few letters from people who have tried the first bottle:

Miss F. E. Cullihan, 1728 Gano st., Houston, Tex., writes in part on Oct. 6, 1904: "For a long time I suffered with Catarrh, Loss of Appetite and general weakness. Last winter I had a severe case of measles that settled on my lungs. I was completely run down in general health. The first bottle of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron helped me more than all other remedies I have taken put together. Four bottles was all I needed to effect a cure."

J. H. Tiemeyer, the well-known carpet man at 514 Franklin av., St. Louis, Mo., says: "The first bottle of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron does a person so much good it should convince even the most skeptical. I know what it does, and cannot indorse it too highly."

Miss Lulu Leonard, Peoria, Ill., says: "De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron is really a phenomenal remedy. I was run down from overwork. Was nervous, had no appetite, and needed a good tonic that would build up the system. The very first dose did me good, and I gained four pounds on the first bottle."

We received just 916 such letters during the month of September, 1904, all voluntary and entirely unsolicited. This unparalleled proposition is what caused these people to begin taking De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron.

First—We want you to go to your druggist and get a bottle of De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron. Take it according to directions, and if you don't say it improved you—in fact, did you so much good, you could see it yourself—then tear off the front of the carton in which the bottle came and mail to us, and we will return your money by return mail as gladly as we received it.

Second—If the first bottle does you good, continue its use until you are entirely well. If it fails, then all you have to do is to mail us the front of all the cartons, and your money will be refunded to you promptly by return mail.

This is all anyone can offer. You must try it for yourself. Can you afford not to?

De Lacy's Cin-Ko-Na and Iron for sale by drug stores everywhere at $1.00 per bottle, or 6 bottles for $5.00. But if for any reason your druggist will not get it for you, send the price to us direct, and we will send it to you by express, all charges prepaid. Address De Lacy Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo.

MR. DOOLEY, Funnier Than Ever,

Dissects George Meredith's plea for short term marriages, in next Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

The Archey Road Philosopher gives consideration to both sides of the case, seeing something good and something bad in each, but concludes:

"In me heart, I think, if people marry, it ought to be for life. The laws are altogether too lenient with them."

THOMAS F. MILLARD, THE NOTED MISSOURI WAR CORRESPONDENT,

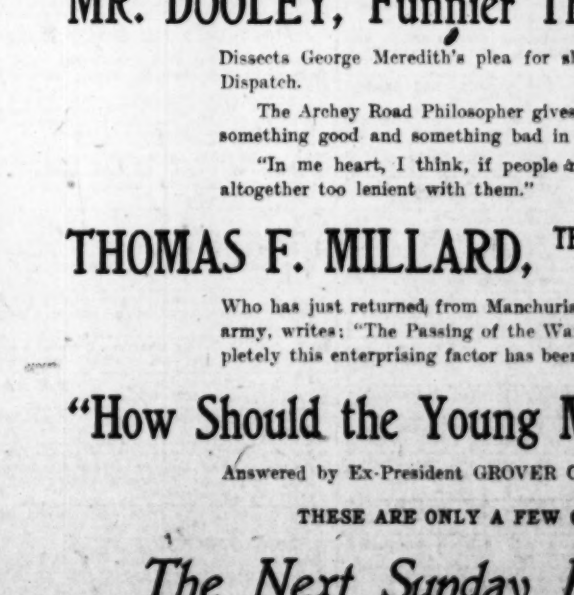

Who has just returned from Manchuria, where he was at the front with the Russian army, writes: "The Passing of the War Correspondent," an article showing how completely this enterprising factor has been eliminated by both the belligerents.

"How Should the Young Man Vote?"

Answered by Ex-President GROVER CLEVELAND and Senator A. J. BEVERIDGE.

THESE ARE ONLY A FEW OF THE BIG FEATURES OF

The Next Sunday POST-DISPATCH

POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCES

STOCKS RISE AND FELL AT THE TOP

AND RISE AT THE TOP

Bullish Speculation on An Enormous Scale Prevails All Through the Last Prices Noted Record Gains From One to Three Points.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A strong opening in the specialty list was the feature of the initial trading on Wall street this morning, the heavy purchases being confined largely to Sugar, People's Gas and the traction stocks, of which class Brooklyn Rapid Transit was the particular strong spot. Trading in the general list was of the same character as at the opening of yesterday's session, and in the majority of cases prices showed only slight advances.

Little change if any in the general situation is apparent over night and sentiment remains cheerful. The markets abroad show considerable improvement in the face of the Japanese victory and early quotations from the London market on American issues were higher than those of yesterday. It is the opinion that the rate of discount of the Bank of England will remain unchanged for the balance of the present list, and having a beneficial effect on sentiment in the financial circles abroad in the face of the recent advance in the rate of discount by the Bank of Berlin from 4 to 5 per cent. Conditions in the money market are of the nature of returning activity. Southern producers of pig iron report more buying orders than they have had in some time, and it is generally stated that the United States Steel Corporation has books at the present time than were recorded in the same period of 1903.

In the first few minutes of trading heavy buying orders appeared in the general list and in general rail well above last night's closing. Bullish speculation ruled supreme in the second hour of trading and the market became highly animated under the influence of enormous buying in the general list, both the long and short account. The buying movement became more diversified than has been the case in many days past, and strong indications that some outside interest in the specialty list was manifesting itself as apparent in the trading. Commission brokers report a considerable increase in the volume of business and the strength and breadth of the trading is suggestive.

No adverse news of any kind bearing on the securities market was forthcoming, and the indications for a favorable bank statement tomorrow were decided. The general sentiment, however, was not so favorable, and the strength and breadth of the trading is suggestive. No adverse news of any kind bearing on the securities market was forthcoming, and the indications for a favorable bank statement tomorrow were decided. The general sentiment, however, was not so favorable, and the strength and breadth of the trading is suggestive.

The market at the noon hour still found the bulls in the hands of the bulls, and the strong and advancing and the general list rose to two points higher. Sales to noon, 50,000.

Bond houses report the demand for this class of securities as excellent and the features of the market are of the most favorable. The market at the noon hour still found the bulls in the hands of the bulls, and the strong and advancing and the general list rose to two points higher. Sales to noon, 50,000.

BOOM FOLLOWS EARLY BREAK

Selling by Bears Caused Early Weakness, Then Advanced on Active Buying.

SHORTS WERE FRIGHTENED

Scarcity of Contract Wheat Has Strong Influence—Cash Prices Also Higher.

Bearish operators held control of the speculative cereals for about half an hour, during that short period cutting values 1/2 to 1/4 for wheat and 1/4 for corn. Then they saw the wheat market shoot up 2 1/2 and corn to the extent of 1/4, and the close a full gain for wheat and for corn for the day. It was wheat that started the boom, and led the fresh bull movement, and the wheat market was the chief feature of the day. The Northwest taking off hedge on cash, it was said, probably fearing manipulation owing to scarcity of contract grade, bringing local bulls in with a rush, and some shorts following suit. Offerings were so small that no difficulty found in selling the market and it is estimated that the old story of shorts scared and bulls enthused by talk of scarcity of contract and premiums for choice wheat. ALLEGED EMBEZZLER CAUGHT

Bank Cashier Charged With $10,000 Theft Arrested at Track.

Detective John Cordell of Chief Desmond's staff, at Delmar racetrack, arrested Thursday W. R. Eaves, alias R. E. Reed, who is wanted in Arlington, Tex., to answer an indictment charging him with embezzling $10,000 from the Citizens' National Bank, of which he was cashier.

Eaves, Sheriff of Arlington, Tex., arrived in St. Louis a week ago and gave local police circulars with photographs and descriptions of Eaves. As he was known to frequent racetracks, Detective Cordell has been watching Delmar track for several days.

Detective Cordell will claim $500 reward, which has been offered by the bank for Eaves' arrest.

Regal Wear—Regal Style

We put a King Calf upper on a double sole of Oak Tanned leather. That makes the most durable shoe in the world—a Regal.

The Regal tannery-to-consumer system, which brings our shoes from the hides in our tannery through our own factory and stores direct to you, saves five months in style transmission, gives you shoes up to the minute in fashion, saves you four unnecessary profits. That is why $3.50 spent in a Regal Store buys $6.00 shoes. Here, for example, is a Regal, bench-made, in quarter sizes, equaling custom-made shoes in every detail of workmanship, style and fit. It's the "EARL"

The most popular shoe for conservative men. Fashioned after the latest custom models, and skillfully designed to insure smooth and easy fit. WEST VIRGINIA STATE TICKET THOUGHT SAFE

Davis Party Learns That Great Corporations Will Support Democratic Nominees Because of Peculiar Clause That Is Included in Tax Bill.

LOCAL MANAGERS HOPE PLURALITY OF 20,000.

Hill, in Carefully Prepared Speech, Opens New Line of Campaign Argument in Broaching Government by Injunction—Mr. Davis Makes Ten Speeches.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 14.—Henry Gassaway Davis finished the third day of his whitewind tour with two large political meetings in this city. The Democratic state leaders are exuberant with confidence that West Virginia will be swept out of the Republican column. Chairman McGraw and his aides predict at least 20,000 plurality for the Democratic state ticket.

Within three days two very important things have happened to help the Democratic cause—first, dissatisfaction of farmers and small property holders with the new tax laws passed by the Republican legislature; second, the coal oil, gas, lumber and railroad corporations have decided to support the Democratic state ticket regardless of their views on national affairs. It is still a question of doubt whether the expected state plurality will be large enough to pull through the Parker and Davis electors. The truth is, nobody in West Virginia seems to care a fig about the national issues.

In contrast with this remarkable indifference, the preaching of Democratic arguments on local issues has been demanded at every little meeting.

Tax Argument

Against Republicans.

So noticeable is this sentiment that all the oratorical powers of the spellbinders are directed toward the absorbing subject that is uppermost in the public mind. Thus far the Democrats have the better of the taxation argument with the masses by the simple statement that the Republican taxation laws will double the assessed valuation of their little farms and homes, while the corporations will escape.

Republicans are having difficulty explaining the compensating benefits of other parts of the intricate laws. But while Mr. Davis and his fellow-orators have been telling how the corporations escaped taxation, other silent influences have been working to bring the largest corporations in the state to support the Democratic ticket.

The alliance was proclaimed last night at the Fairmont meeting when ex-Gov. Fleming appeared as chairman. Mr. Fleming and his relatives, the Watson family, are principal owners of the Fairmont Coal Co., the greatest mining company of the state, which employs 11,000 men in 69 mines and owns 62,000 acres of land. When Congressman Wilson, in his tariff bill, put coal on the free list, the Fairmont Coal Co. defeated him for re-election and ever since has held aloof from the Democratic party. Gov. Fleming proclaimed his return to the Democracy in his speech. Political leaders say that nearly every one of his 11,000 employees will vote the Democratic ticket. This Fleming re-enforcement brings another corporation into line.

Corporation Leaders

Are All Powerful.

The ex-governor is counsel of the Standard Oil Co. in West Virginia, where that organization operates under the name of the South Pennsylvania Oil Co., with 14,000 employees. On the Davis train, traveling from Fairmont to Wheeling, were A. A. Gaskill, superintendent of the South Pennsylvania Oil Co., and C. C. Charles E. Wells, its legislative agent. Instantly the word flew out through political centers that the corporations have joined with the farmers against the tax laws, and enough else to intimate that the railroad, the natural gas and the timber companies could be counted on.

These corporations and the farmers are closely related, for the profit-sharing leasehold system often makes them partners, and the new tax laws strike each in a different way. The farmer sees the land which he owns taxed at a full valuation, while his corporation partner in a mine or well gets off free. The corporation, on the other hand, finds in the law a section that gives the state tax commissioner inquisitorial powers to open every book and pry into the affairs of the corporation, threatening to prosecute for injury. The politicians of both parties see in this an opportunity for building up a political machine that can terrorize farmer and corporation alike.

Hill Opens New

Line of Argument.

Mr. Davis seems never to tire. He made ten speeches today, eight along the road at small towns and two tonight at meetings in Wheeling. Mr. Davis first spoke to 2000 people in a huge tent, then to 800 in the Carroll Club. His speeches were devoted principally to national and state extravagance in government; he urged return to democratic economy. Mr. Hill in his speech—a carefully prepared effort, delivered in his best form—presented two subjects, the election of United States senators by the people and denunciation of government by injunction.

Mr. Hill sounded the keynote of a new campaign when he said amid tremendous applause: "A workman has the right to quit work whenever and where he pleases."

Judge Jackson, of the United States district court, has granted many injunctions against strikes. Denunciation of this practice will be repeated by orators in various states where labor unions are strong.

The tour will continue for two days along the Ohio river to Huntington, in the farthest corner of the state. From there the mountain fastness of the central portion will be invaded.

Port Arthur on Fire.

This year's great success, Palm's Bombardment of Port Arthur, will be given tonight in the Stadium on the World's Fair grounds at 7:45 o'clock. Admission with seat 35 cents. International wrestling match today at 2:30 p. m. in the Stadium.

DRUGGISTS FOR SUNDAY REST

Will Request Members of Association to Restrict Sabbath Sales.

The convention of the National Association of Retail Druggists met at the Missouri building at the World's Fair Friday morning and held a short business session. After adjourning the delegates scattered about the Exposition to celebrate Retail Druggists' day at the World's Fair. The druggists Thursday adopted a Sunday Rest resolution, which requests all druggists to restrict their Sunday sales to those of necessity. The resolution was introduced by J. G. Bone of Scranton, Pa., and several delegates to the Sunday rest congress spoke on it. Although it met with much opposition, when the final vote was taken there was not a dissenting vote. The association declared against the use of trading stamps by druggists as being detrimental to the trade.

Exciting—Football—Startling.

In the Stadium, on the World's Fair grounds, Saturday, Oct. 15, at 2 p. m. Washington University vs. University of the South. This is the first big game of the season.

Atterbury System The Clothes of Gentility

THE gentlemen of America want hand-tailored clothes at a popular price and you can't escape the fact any more than you can avert the coming of eternity. After all the time, the labor, the thought and the fortunes that have been expended in the effort to convince the people that the ready-to-wear machine made clothes fill the bill, it needs but a touch of the "real thing" to utterly dissipate the effect the manufacturers think they have produced.

THE Atterbury System, which employs the methods of the custom-tailor on an enlarged scale, represents the only sincere and successful effort that has ever been made in this country to produce the clothes of gentility, which are utterly lacking in the unregulate traits of clothing bought at a store. There are thousands of men in America who have waited from youth to old age for the redemption of the manufacturers' promise to "do better," but it devolves upon The Atterbury System to find the way—and the only way—to appease the clamor of taste.

That way is to produce at a popular price hand-tailored clothes that are ready to put on, which possess the style, the swing, the dash, the individuality and character of custom-tailored garments and positively will retain them until the material is ready for the old clothes man. That in brief explains the meaning of The Atterbury System.
